STATE DRAFTS ROAD PROGRAM TO AID CHICAGO

Post-War Plan Will Cost 217 Million.

[This is the first of a series of stories on plans for the development of Chicagoland highways to keep pace with the demands of post-war traffic.]

BY ROBERT HOWARD.

State highway officials yesterday sponsored a $216,720,000 road and street modernization program as part of the drive to end the transportation stagnation that has been devitalizing Chicago and its metropolitan region. The state, showing the way to the city and county governments more intimately concerned with local transport problems, hopes to be ready to put men to work at the start of the post-war demobilization period.

W. A. Rosenfield.

The projects, referred to the Illinois post-war planning commission, are vital for two reasons:

1. Chicago cannot remain the transportation hub of the middle west unless modern highways permit future model automobiles to travel rapidly, easily, and safely to and from the city. The danger of prolonging inactivity and creating bigger traffic tieups was recently emphasized by Gov. Green in asking the planning commission to assume leadership.

2. Main traffic arteries into Chicago are being pounded to pieces by excessively loaded supertrucks carrying war materials. Thus the main routes into the city, unless rebuilt and in some place relocated, soon will be unable to handle the present volume of ration-reduced travel, to say nothing of the millions of new and faster cars that will appear after the war.

On 10 Year Schedule.

"Our highway program is laid out on a 10 year schedule but could be finished more quickly," said Walter A. Rosenfield, state director of public works and buildings. "It calls for the expenditure of $178,878,000 for actual construction and $37,842,000 for purchase of rights of way. For many of the projects detailed plans have been completed and right of way obtained.

"The state division of highways is in step with Gov. Green's move to do everything possible to give Illinois the best facilities for auto travel in the new era that will come after the war. The critical point is the Chicago highway network, and there the first responsibility is on the city and county officials.

"Governmental stagnation must not be permitted to handicap American automobiling. Our factories will make cars and our people will want to drive them. We must provide adequate, safe, and time saving roads."

Superhighways on Program.

Included in the state program is 30 million dollars for construction and 20 million dollars for right of way as part of the cost of the superhighway system in Chicago and Cook county. Those projects are still in the preliminary stages despite constant prodding of local officials by civic agencies. On many sites for superhighways grass still grows.

Cook county has expressway visions for the suburbs, and some land has been bought for new routes south and north.

While insistent upon using the discredited Congress st. route for the superhighways west from the downtown area, city officials have not completed plans for it and have only preliminary sketches about the cost of Chicago's dream of a network of nonstop expressways radiating from the loop to the suburbs. Nevertheless, Chicago has asked the state for $237,700,000 to finance post-war super highways, mostly on a de-

FALL ELECTION WILL BE CLOSE; N. Y. AN ENIGMA

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING

There is one thing the Democratic and Republican national leaders are agreed on as the 1944 battle for the Presidency begins. It is going to be a close election.

Members of the Democratic national committee said yesterday they are confident that Roosevelt and Truman will be elected but most of them concede that it is going to be a battle. The same qualified confidence in the election of Dewey and Bricker was expressed by members of the Republican national committee at the close of the Republican convention last month.

On the basis of information and opinions obtained from the national committeemen of both parties this is the political picture presented at the opening of the canvass:

| | States. | Electoral votes. |
|---|---|---|
| Democratic | 19 | 185 |
| Republican | 18 | 181 |
| Doubtful | 11 | 165 |
| Total | | 531 |

Necessary to a choice are 266 electoral votes.

Distribution of Votes.

Likely to Go Republican.

Of the doubtful states, Maryland, Oregon, Pennsylvania, and Washington, with an aggregate 65 electoral votes, are more likely to go Republican than Democratic, the information on which this survey is based indicates. Leaning Democratic are Connecticut, Delaware, Kentucky, Massachusetts, and Missouri,

LAST FEARFUL HOURS

Plane Loads of Babies Flown from Yugoslavia to Safety

AN ALLIED AIRPORT IN EASTERN ITALY, July 8 [Delayed]—(AP).—The hour hand on the lieutenant's watch had moved past midnight and was coming up on 1 o'clock when he saw the red light.

"Start rolling," he said.

He started off across the taxi strip, floodlighted by a rich three-quarter moon.

From the shadows on the far side two ambulances moved out. A staff car followed, then two jeeps. Except for the noise of their motors, the airport, bustling by day, was as silent as the grave.

The red light grew larger and soon began to give off a faint hum that mounted in pitch and became in a few moments the drone of two synchronized engines. The red light circled the field and settled slowly.

69 Passengers in Plane.

Then in a great cloud of dust a troop carrier plane in war paint rolled down the runway.

The cabin door popped open pushed by a youthful American pilot, a wide smile stretching from ear to ear. Then he made his announcement:

"Sixty-nine passengers."

Somebody whistled — 30 passengers would have been a full load.

The pilot spoke again.

"Sixty-six of them are babies, the rest are nurses."

The waiting officers broke for the plane. The babies were there—they could count them. There were babies on the seats, babies on the floor, babies in baskets, babies in arms. There were sleeping babies, crying babies, laughing babies, and babies staring in blank amazement at the excitement they were provoking.

His Best Behaved Cargo.

The ambulance backed up to the plane and the young pilot carefully supervised the transfer of his cargo, self-satisfaction spread all over his grinning face.

"They are the best passengers I have ever had," he said. "Once I got off the ground they all went to sleep, there wasn't a whisper after that."

That was all he said about "getting off the ground."

The pickup had been a top secret "special" operation—one of a number carried out to assist the Yugoslav Partisans orphaned by the struggle in their homeland. The babies had been collected under the very noses of the Germans, and were taken to a hidden airport.

Then the American planes that dropped in gathered them aboard and flew them out of the country across the Adriatic to where they could be cared for properly.

More and More Flights.

A little later there was another plane—with more babies—then another and another set down on the dimly lit runway. Until an hour before dawn they were still arriving.

The count on babies passed 100 before attention slipped to a plane bursting with passengers. A girl in heavy battle dress stood in the doorway, the bright red star on her cap gleaming.

A strong smell of medicine and disinfectant seeped past her from an assortment of 30 men and women of all descriptions, some virtually without clothes, some without arms or legs. They kept on singing, even as the stretcher-bearers loaded them into the ambulances. They sang of Slovenia, of Croatia, or Serbia, and in nearly every song they sang of Tito. [Marshal Tito, leader of the liberator movement.]

Rescued Flyers Return.

A small group, its secret mission completed, stepped out of the transports as calm and unruffled as if they had just come from tea. Behind them, somewhere deep in the Balkans another bridge lay in ruins or a train in smoking destruction.

A few American airmen, with clothing torn but spirits in top shape, climbed out. The Americans jubilantly kissed the ground. They had parachuted into Yugoslavia from bombers crippled in raids over the Balkans.

By the time an orange-blue haze in the east signaled dawn and the end of the operations, all the planes had found their way safely to the field. From no man's land on the other side of the Adriatic, several hundred wounded Yugoslavs had been brought and at least 120 babies. The greatest mass air evacuation ever undertaken from Yugoslavia had been completed without a hitch.

AIR GADGETEERS FIX EVERYTHING

Mechanics Make What They Can't Repair

BY ARTHUR VEYSEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

AT AN ADVANCED NEW GUINEA AIR BASE, July 23.—If you want a new wing on a Liberator or if the radio is off the beam, or if you need a hot shower or a pair of silk underpants, just go get an air corps mechanic. They, in all modesty, admit that they can do anything.

Ingenuity pops out all over the place. Once it was the ingenuity of American youths that kept planes aloft. But even with tools and supplies now coming regularly, mechanics still cling to many gadgets of their own making.

Need a wing? The mechanics will hang a new one on the belly of a transport and fly it to you. Or they will rebuild the old one, using galvanized iron or even tin cans. There is one old bomber flying hereabouts which is built almost entirely of scraps. It has parts from bombers and pursuit ships, with gadgets from trucks and tractors thrown in. But it does 10 miles per hour more than its factory built sisters. Many are the planes resurrected from jungle swamps.

Make Their Own Tools.

Radio off the beam? That's easy. The youthful wizards pick out the faults as easily as finding seeds in a grapefruit.

The maintenance outfits get along almost entirely with tools of their own fashioning. And they wouldn't trade them for factory jobs. Changing big plane tires was once a hard job, but a simple screw affair fairly pops them off the rims, saving tires, rims, and energy.

Some personal comforts? Two empty oil drums and a piece of scrap tubing will make a shower that will run hot all night. And any parachute shop will turn you out some underpants out of silk scraps. An old lifeboat and a wrecked jeep combine to make a motorboat.

All Want to Go Home.

All this mechanics is just a sideline for most of the men. Sgt. Louis Melzer, 1738 N. Orleans, Chicago, for instance, wants to take the St. Louis Browns up on a third base nibble. Lt. Howard Bro wants to get back to teaching at Aurora, Ill., and Lt. William Morgan, chief engineer officer for one outfit, wants to resume his English literature studies at the University of Colorado. Sgt. Harold Streich, 5344 N. Clark, Chicago, and Sgt. Glenn Phillips, Janesville, Wis., just want to get home.

ENEMY BLASTS BRIDGES; YANKS DRIVE TO RIVER

Leaning Tower of City Undamaged.

BY SEYMOUR KORMAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

(Map on page 4.)

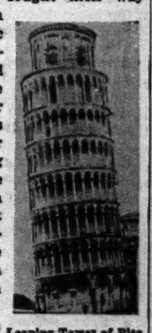
WITH 5TH ARMY, Pisa, Italy, July 23.—Yanks fought their way into the southern part of historic Pisa this afternoon and reached the bank of the Arno river. Their advance was made under heavy shelling and mortar fire from German guns on Mount Pisano and snipers and machine gun fire from rear guards in the city.



Leaning Tower of Pisa

The Americans fought back with small arms fire and some artillery fire, but were loathe to shell this ancient city of Tuscany, particularly that part north of the Arno where the famous tower leans.

As I watched from the southern area of Pisa, several bridges across the Arno which joined the two communities of the city were demolished by charges set by the Germans.

Tower Stands Undamaged.

There were other demolitions in the vicinity of the Campanile, the technical designation for the leaning tower, but that great pile still slanted only 14 feet out of perpendicular as it has since the 14th century.

Pisa has a normal population of 65,000. But many of the citizens had gone to the hills days ago, and others, with their belongings in carts, were streaming south as we came north. There were few civilians in the streets.

At first sight Pisa does not appear to have been damaged nearly so much as near-by towns, like Livorno, [Leghorn] and Cecina. Some roofs and walls of dwellings have been torn away, but the noted churches on the south bank of the Arno, including the 13th century Gothic structure of Santa Maria della Spina and the octagonal basilica of San Sepolcro, built in the 12th century, seem largely intact.

Heavier Shelling to Come.

How much longer the medieval buildings will remain undamaged is another matter, for southern Pisa is a mighty hot place to be right now.

The Germans are continuing to pour in small arms fire from across the Arno, but as their men fall back the area they leave becomes the target for German 88s and big mortars on Mount Pisano. The Nazis have been throwing up smoke shells to mark our movements and concentrations.

Whenever these black bursts appear in the sky it is time to find shelter, for they herald a deluge of 88s.

First Patrol Gets Action.

The first of our patrols to enter the city and reach the Arno was led by Pvt. LeRoy Rodgers, Minneiska, Minn. Stepping gingerly along, Rodgers and his companions suddenly found themselves caught in German crossfire.

They found momentary sanctuary in a building near the river and returned rifle and tommy gun fire. The place became too torrid, however, and they crawled back to a safer spot in the southern section. Stronger American detachments worked in and engaged the Germans in street fighting. The Nazi infantrymen began to pull back, and German gunners and mortar crews began their work from the hills.

The battle for the city is far from

CHURCHILL SEES 'GRAVE SIGNS' OF NAZI WEAKNESS

LONDON, July 23 (AP).—In the first official allied word on the crisis in Germany, Prime Minister Churchill, during a visit to Normandy today, said there were "grave signs of weakness" in the reich and predicted the war "might come to an end earlier than we have a right to say."

He spoke to about 500 men of the royal air force after his plane landed. Of the Germans, he added:

"They are in a great turmoil inside and none can measure the extent. Opposite you is an enemy whose central power is crumbling. There is a great disturbance in the German machine. Think how you would feel if there was a revolution at home and they were shooting at cabinet ministers."

Early Victory Is No Promise.

Churchill went on to declare that the Germans were being smitten from the air, that the Russians were rolling up on them from the east, and that Gen. Alexander's "very large" armies were moving up in Italy.

"We may hope the war will be won soon," he said, then added, with a humorous tone and gesture, "within two or three years. I never promised anything."

Churchill commented with an acid grin on the bombing of Adolf Hitler:

"They missed the old bounder [a rough approximation of the word he used]—but there's time yet."

Britain Seeks 'No Reward.'

Churchill told a group at a Canadian air field:

"I think hopes of victory are sure, but whether it is coming soon or late I cannot tell.

"It is no sterile victory to be won for lust or conquest or greed of one nation against another. We have fought for honor and we seek no reward. We seek no territory, we desire no oil fields, we seek nothing that is not our own. But what is our own in the commonwealth, that we don't want any other people to express an opinion about. That we will firmly retain."

Sees Robot Bomb Base.

The prime minister's three day visit to the Normandy front was announced after he returned to London today. While in Normandy he inspected Cherbourg and looked over one of the German flying bomb installations which had been captured by the Americans. It was the most elaborate flying bomb base thus far discovered.

Lt. Col. Frank E. Reed of Pauls Valley, Okla., started to explain the launching system to him, but Churchill first called in his chief military adviser, Gen. Hastings Ismay.

Col. Reed said that of 35 bombing positions found on the Cherbourg peninsula, this was the only one apparently intended by the Germans to be bombproof.

It was about 60 per cent completed. Col. Reed said that one underground chamber was 250 feet long, that there were interconnected caves with eight tunnel entrances, and that even a gas escape port had been built.

F. D. R. MAY PAY VISIT TO FRANCE, LONDON REPORT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 23.—President Roosevelt may follow King George's lead and visit Cherbourg in the near future to see American troops, the Sunday Express reports. It says such a visit is thought probable now that Roosevelt has gotten thru the first round of the Presidential battle and "would prove immediately popular."

It is possible also, according to the Express, that the opportunity might be taken to hold another round table conference between allied leaders with events in Germany and their possible repercussions as the main item on the agenda.

Get New Foothold Near Saipan.

U. S. PACIFIC FLEET HDQ., Pearl Harbor, T. H., July 23—(AP).—United States marines landed today on Tinian Island, continuing the American amphibious moves against the Marianas. "The landings are being continued against light opposition," Adm. Chester W. Nimitz said in a bulletin.

Adm. Nimitz reported the 2d and 4th marines, supported by both carrier and land based planes and both naval and artillery fire, had firmly established beachheads.

[The Tokyo radio, in a broadcast recorded by the Associated Press, said the Tinian assault was launched "under an umbrella of shells," but asserted that the first attack had been repulsed and that Japanese defenders had "set fire to one enemy battleship and two destroyers of the accompanying fleet and put them to hurried flight."]

Gen. Smith Promoted.

Simultaneously, Nimitz disclosed that Lt. Gen. Holland F. Smith, United States marine corps, has been promoted from commander of the 5th amphibious corps to commanding general, fleet marine forces of the Pacific, a newly created post.

The promotion presumably was a reward for Gen. Smith's conduct of the Saipan campaign.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Tinian Island, third of the Marianas group to be invaded is about two-thirds the size of Saipan. It is 10 nautical miles long and about five wide. It is a broad, elevated limestone plateau, with sugar cane fields—now largely burned off by American incendiary bombs—covering about 90 per cent of its surface. Except at Tinian town harbor the few beaches are backed by steep cliffs. A reef fringes 70 per cent of the island's 34 miles of coast.

TELL GUAM CASUALTIES

PACIFIC FLEET HDQ., Pearl Harbor, July 23 (AP).—American amphibious forces secured beachheads and made "substantial gains" on Guam with only 1,958 casualties in the first three days of fighting, Adm. Chester W. Nimitz announced today. Marines and soldiers are continuing to advance.

Nimitz' estimates of casualties thru Saturday, covering three days and two nights, listed 348 Americans killed, 1,500 wounded, and 110 missing.

Altho figures were not available for the comparable period on Saipan, first United States conquest in the Marianas Islands, the Guam casualties were believed to be considerably smaller.

Peninsula Cut Off.

Orote peninsula, forming the southern arm of Guam's major harbor, has been virtually cut off by the 1st marine brigade under Brig. Gen. Lemuel S. Shepherd Jr., of La Jolla, Cal.

One of the most important air fields of all the Marianas, lying on Orote peninsula, was thus isolated. All roads leading to that area have been cut off by the two American spearheads closing in around the peninsula and Apra harbor from the north and south.

Shepherd's force was in the south. In the north the 3d marine division, under Maj. Gen. A. H. Turnage of Widewater, Va., completed the capture of Cabras Island and the town of Piti. Cabras Island and surrounding reefs form the northern arm of Port Apra. Piti is across the channel from Cabras.

Approach Agana.

Another arm of the 3d marines approached Guam's most important city, Agana, a few miles north of their original beachhead.

Several small units of Japanese tried to make night infiltrations into Turnage's forces. Nimitz announced all were repulsed. He gave no indication of the extent of enemy casualties.

WAR FRONTS HIT BY NAZI PURGE, LONDON HEARS

Army Gets New Plea for Loyalty.

LONDON, July 23 (AP).—Adolf Hitler's purge of rebellious officers has spread to the fighting fronts in Russia, France, and possibly Italy, with eight eastern front commanders arrested or ousted, reports from the French frontier declared tonight.

Col. Gen. Guderian [top] and Gen. Blaskowitz.

This information, revealing that the anti-Hitler clique that attempted a coup d'etat perhaps extended to generals battling the giant allied nutcracker squeezing upon Germany, came on the heels of a new appeal from the Nazi command for loyalty from German soldiers.

Besides eight commanders on the Russian front, Gestapo agents have arrested and possibly executed German divisional leaders in France, and also seized Field Marshal Albert Kesselring, wehrmacht commander in Italy, the French border reports declared.

One report in particular possibly indicated the scope and planning of the revolt. Gen. Johannes Blaskowitz of the Bordeaux sector was said to have ordered his troops on Monday to prepare for emergencies, but to have canceled the order when he learned the attempt on Hitler's life on Thursday had failed. Blaskowitz since has been absent from his headquarters, it was added.

Rebels Appear Losers.

While these and other reports indicated a wholesale rounding up or even execution of German generals and other high officers, the secrecy-clouded picture of events in Germany indicated Hitler had weathered at least the first stage of the crisis.

Word from the French frontier was that the Gestapo and SS [elite guards] had the upper hand within Germany. Heinrich Himmler, Gestapo chief, who has been given wide powers by Hitler to keep order in the reich, was said to have installed many loyal Nazis as liaison officers in army headquarters in France, and presumably on the eastern front.

The sense of these and other reports was that there had as yet been no revolution or revolt of major proportions in the reich.

Unconfirmed reports persisted of street clashes in German cities, supporting speculation that the crisis was not yet over, and there were evidences of sagging morale among German fighting men on all three great battle fronts.

The Ankara, Turkey, radio said an 8:30 p. m. to 8 a. m. curfew had been imposed in Berlin.

A Reuters [British news agency] dispatch from inside Europe said that according to reliable reports from Belgrade, Yugoslavia, clashes had occurred there between the German army and the forces of Himmler.

Army "Clean," Says Guderian.

Col. Gen. Heinz Guderian, Hitler's new chief of the army general staff, broadcast to troops that the army "has purged itself and freed itself from unclean elements," and "guaranteed" the "unanimity of the generals, officers, and men of the German army."

Guderian's appeal termed leaders of the revolt "cowards and weaklings" and asserted that some had been in active service when they attempted the coup d' etat culminating in the attempt on Hitler's life.

Guderian repeated Hitler's order of the day yesterday before making his statement. Continued emphasis on appeals to the troops to maintain loyalty indicated that the revolt, even if it were completely quelled, was serious enough to require the greatest reassurances to men at the front.

Unity Declared Established.

Guderian declared:

"After reading the Fuehrer's order of the day to his army, I wish on behalf of the Germany army to add:

"A few officers, a part of whom were no more in active service, had lost courage. Cowards and weaklings, they preferred the way of shame to the way of duty and honor, which course alone is possible for all decent soldiers.

"The army has purged itself and freed itself from unclean elements.

"On all fighting fronts and at home Germans are feverishly working for victory regardless of sacrifices.

Offers Hindenburg Slogan.

"The people and army are standing closely united behind the fuehrer.

"The enemy has made the mistake of believing to be able to turn to his favor a split between generals of the German army.

"I guarantee to the fuehrer and the German people the unanimity of the generals, officers, and men of the German army, bent on a single aim of winning victory under the slogan so often impressed on us by venerable Field Marshal von Hindenburg, 'faithfulness is the essence of honor.'

"Long live Germany and our fuehrer Adolf Hitler.

"And now, people, to arms!"

Von Hindenburg was a personification of the junkers officer caste, but it was junker generals who apparently led the attempt to seize power from Hitler — perhaps planning to make a compromise peace.

Noted Voices Still Unheard.

There still was no word from such important men as Field Marshals Karl Rudolf Gerd Von Runstedt, Wilhelm Keitel, Fedor von Bock, Walther von Brauchitsch, or a dozen others. Perhaps, like Col. Gen. Ludwig Beck, former German general staff chief, they had been killed by the gestapo.

Rumors of violence still welled from Germany, some of them obviously inspired by allied propaganda, with reports of street clashes in Kiel, Stettin, Munich, Bremen, and other cities, and martial law declared in Koenigsberg, capital of east Prussia.

The weight of evidence seemed to indicate that the German masses were too weary or terrorized to take sides, and that if the army itself is to stalemate Hitler it likely would be mere mass refusal to fight rather than by any swift coup.

YANKS STUDY CRISIS

BY JOHN THOMPSON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

U. S. 1ST ARMY HDQ. IN NORMANDY, July 23.—Army officers here are closely following developments in Germany's internal crisis. They are attempting to determine the effect the revolt and the attempt on Hitler's life are having on German troops facing the American army along a 48 mile front in Normandy.

News of the German revolt, which is reported to have involved many high officers, still is not widespread among Nazi troops in this area, according to prisoners taken in the last few days. There had been no direct broadcast to all these soldiers, they said, but news trickled in as reënforcements reached the front line.

Situation Still in Doubt.

Two Germans captured in St. Lo told of hearing reports that an attempt had been made to kill Hitler and that some generals were fighting the fuehrer's SS [elite guard] supporters. One, an alert sergeant, implied regret that the assassination attempt had failed.

"This man said he believed that if any German officer gave the order the men would lay down their weapons," said an American officer.

He added it was still too early to determine how far sympathy with the army revolt extends thru the ranks.

"No doubt the German soldier will be shaken by this news," this source continued, "and his will to continue will be impaired. You cannot fool them for long. They consider their own situation depressing, and when they learn of the revolt they cannot escape the fact they are fighting a lost cause."

On the British sector, the officer said, a group of German soldiers was captured after their officers had withdrawn some distance to discuss the situation in secrecy.

Aristocrats Fear Russia.

Our army, this observer said, has always considered the possibility of a fight arising between German army officers and Nazi party leaders and the latter's SS divisions. Such a split, bringing civil clashes, probably would result in confusion in the army and aid the allied battle strategy.

Most German officers captured on the American sector, according to this officer, disclose fear of what a Russian victory would mean for Germany. A good German officer of the professional class, he said, usually was close mouthed on military matters, but willing to talk of Russia.

This fear is encountered, he said, even among young Nazi fanatics from SS or paratrooper units. It is even stronger, he declared, among the Junkers and others of the German aristocracy.

Two Red Moves Feared.

The Junkers, this officer said, fear that Russia would dismember Germany and destroy her upper class, traditional reservoir of officer material.

The military informant said there always was the possibility that the German army would attempt a coup d'etat against the Nazi regime in an attempt to save Germany and the remnants of the army, rather than continue the suicidal fight to fight to the end, as dictated by Hitler and his associates.

DENT NAZI LINES IN 2 SECTORS OF NORMAN FRONT

BY E. R. NODERER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SUPREME HDQ., ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, July 24 [Monday].—The weather in Normandy improved yesterday afternoon and British troops began to square away for resumption of active fighting around Troarn when the mud dries. In several sectors British and American troops beat back numerous German counter-attacks.

In early operations the British captured Emieville, a woodland hamlet five miles east of Caen and 2½ miles southwest of Troarn. Tommies cleared the town of Germans who had poured heavy fire on allied tanks pushing down the road to the east and deeply dented the enemy's anti-tank barrier. The British now have cleared a bridgehead 12 miles wide and four miles deep east of the Orne.

[The Germans called this attack a new offensive, but there was no confirmation from supreme headquarters.]

Cross River and Take Town.

Another dent in the German front was made in the American sector, where the river Seves was crossed, followed by the capture of the village of Seves, two miles northeast of Periers.

Mopping up along the river Orne, in the eastern sector, was completed at Etavaux.

Canadian front dispatches said the Germans apparently had abandoned attempts to dent the allied line east of the Orne river at St. Andre after two days of attacks.

Southwest of Esquay the British threw back three counter-attacks, but north of Evrecy they retired from Hill 113. They still controled the more important Hill 112, however. The front still was fluid in the Odon-Orne wedge.

A number of questions are being asked about the progress of the battle of the Orne. This battle, opened brilliantly and then, with a certain number of objectives achieved, came to an abrupt standstill.

Unofficial observers here, and on the front, have asked what this means. Does it mean that Gen. Montgomery is draining Marshal Rommel's strength in preparation for a final and decisive blow?

Or does it mean that Rommel, with inferior equipment and almost no air coöperation, is again foiling Montgomery by superior tactics?

Use Only Light Screen.

German prisoners seem to take rather a patronizing view of the allied effort in Normandy. They say, "You never press an attack or exploit it. You start off with an enormous artillery and air barrage and then you come in with infantry and tanks, occupy a little stretch of ground, and dig in.

The prisoners said the Germans leave only a light infantry screen at the front to diminish the number of casualties from the barrage. "As soon as it stops we rush up our mobile reserves to get your infantry and tanks.

After two days of steady downpours, the clouds lifted and allied medium and light bombers swarmed over the battle zone, hammering close-up communications, dumping 265 tons of bombs on six railway stations between the front and Paris over which enemy reënforcements have been shuttled, and striking at other targets.

Yanks Battle Thru Swamps and Intense Artillery Fire

BY ROBERT CROMIE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH U. S. FORCES IN NORMANDY, July 23.—The only sustained attack on the American sector yesterday was opposed by perhaps the heaviest German mortar and artillery concentration in the entire Normandy campaign.

American troops attempting to fight their way across swamps to an island of firm ground situated three miles north of Periers, between the Seves and Holerotte rivers, met fairly heavy machine gun and scattered small arms and intense artillery fire. Despite this barrage they managed to gain a foothold on the island early yesterday afternoon—after about six hours of fighting.

Two Towns on Island.

The island, which barred our road southward, is about three miles long and three-quarters of a mile wide and it has two principal towns, St. Germain-sur Seves and Seves. The engagement was over terrain not well suited to tank warfare. Despite this handicap our forces managed to take Seves.

Lt. Col. Christian T. Clarke, Atlanta, Ga., commander of one of the units involved, said the Germans had dammed the water above St. Germain-sur Seves to flood the low country surrounding the island. The swampy ground was dotted with bushes rising above a foot or so of water.

Artillery Opposition Stiff.

Pvt. Rodney Collins, La Plata, Mo., who took part in an early morning attack, said, "We went across on the right flank toward the left end of the island. There was some small arms fire but man I'm telling you there was more artillery and mortar than I've ever seen. They had everything zeroed in. We'd line up and they'd lay 'em into us."

Maj. Robert H. Schulz, Davenport, Ia., executive officer of one battalion, and Maj. Stedman Chandler, San Francisco, Cal., the battalion commander, were unanimously in agreement that the artillery opposition was stiff.

Schulz said: "The artillery caught us moving up. Machine guns halted us and then the artillery opened up. I saw 15 men hit along one hedgerow by a single concentration. We have a few wounded men across the stream that we've been unable to get out yet."

Rock Islander an Aid Man.

Chandler, who formerly was with the American Newspaper Proprietors' association in San Francisco, said bitterly, "The artillery has been ceaseless since early this morning. All the time I've been here [at an advanced command post dugout] they've been laying it down and whenever I get out they chase me from hedgerow to hedgerow."

Aidmen are doing a splendid job of evacuating the wounded down a road which is under intermittent German fire. They included Pvt. Douglas Malm, Rock Island, Ill., who was driving a jeep on which stretchers are carried.

Officers directing the attack said they thought one explanation for the seeming increase in German artillery fire might be that since this was the only major attack on the American sector the Germans were concentrating all their artillery within range on this push alone.

GERMAN WAR REPORT.

Sunday's German war bulletin as broadcast by Berlin and recorded in New York by the Associated Press said:

"In Normandy there was embittered fighting yesterday [Saturday] south of Caen for several villages which changed hands several times and finally remained in our possession.

"In attacks southwest of Caen the enemy achieved a local dent which was sealed off.

CAPPER ASSERTS NAZIS MAY FALL WITHIN 100 DAYS

Topeka, Kas., July 23 (AP).—Sen. Capper [R., Kas.] said today he had received reports from several quarters indicating Germany might collapse within 100 days.

"It does begin to look possible that is the case," he said. "If the Russian armies keep on moving, I would say that German resistance on all fronts will likely fold up within that time."

Capper, who is a member of the senate foreign relations committee, added, "We still have a war on our hands in the Pacific, and it will not be easy to win."

VIOLENT ISSUES, BORN OF THE WAR, STIR CANADIANS

Trend Toward Left Seen in Elections.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

QUEBEC, Canada, July 23. — For Canadians, as well as the citizens of the United States, this is an election year and despite a multiplicity of parties and a profusion of platform planks in the approaching provincial campaigns and in the dominion general election that is to follow this fall the real issue seems to be the war and its impact on the Canadian people.

Immediate war developments in Europe are expected to have a profound effect on the voting. Ultra-nationalism and opposition to the war is strong here in Quebec. There is also open talk of secession. In all the provinces, in local elections, the older parties are being put to the test and challenged by the two new parties tending strongly toward socializing the state—the Social creditors, and the Coöperative Commonwealth Federation.

3 Provinces to Vote.

It is no ordinary election year for the Canadians and some profess to see the King government and the Liberal party foundering in the storm.

Three Canadian provinces will go to the polls next month to elect legislatures. The outcome of these elections and their bearing on the ability of the Liberal party to retain power in Ottawa is worry number one of the Mackenzie King government as Canada approaches the end of the fifth year of a war of which the country is weary. In Quebec and Alberta the voters will go to the polls Aug. 8. The New Brunswick election is Aug. 28.

Elections already have been held in Ontario, Prince Edward Island, and Saskatchewan so that within a year six out of the nine provinces will have given a picture of what they are thinking politically.

Setback for Liberals.

The elections in Ontario and in Saskatchewan were distinct setbacks for the King government. In Ontario, the Socialist C. C. F. [Coöperative Commonwealth Federation] made great gains and the Liberal government no longer has an absolute majority in the assembly. In Saskatchewan last month the shock was greater. There, the C. C. F. won a smashing victory, defeating the Liberals, and now is installed in power and planning an advanced program of social legislation.

Here in Quebec the old political pattern has undergone a great change. The Conservatives have disappeared. Premier Godbout and the Liberals are asking reëlection on the basis of an efficient local administration. The new parties, Bloc Populaire and Union Nationale, both ultranationalist, are vociferous in their opposition to the war and to encroachments by Ottawa on provincial autonomy. Quebec separatism is raising its head. These two parties are Godbout's main opposition.

In New Brunswick, where Liberals have been in power for nine years, the challenge is by the Progressive Conservaties, who are strong. The C. C. F. socialist group will also have candidates in the field and will contest every seat.

Manning Versus C. C. F.

In Alberta the government has been in the hands of the Social Creditors for some years. Premier E. C. Manning is asking for a renewal of his mandate to carry out a social credit program which includes a $25 monthly dividend for every one. The main opposition to the Social Creditors will be furnished by the Socialist C. C. F.

One thing pointed out as significant by political strategists here is that not one party, in the English speaking provinces or elsewhere, has come before the people with a platform of all-out participation in the war.

Canada is watching the Quebec elections on Aug. 8 very closely as a clue to the future course of federal political fortunes. If the Quebec nationalists show unexpected strength new developments for the nation may be charted.

A recent pole indicated the electoral strength of the various parties in Quebec as follows: Liberals, 37 per cent; Bloc Populaire, 27 per cent; Union Nationale, 14 per cent; Progressive Conservative, 9 per cent; C. C. F., 6 per cent; other parties 7 per cent. This indicates the Godbout moderate liberals have a majority but the radical ultranationalist Bloc Nationale is rapidly gaining strength. Ottawa fears it might make an alliance with the Union Nationale.

Assail Federal Power.

The Union Nationale party and its leader, M. Maurice Duplessis, assert Godbout and the Liberals have abandoned Quebec's provincial autonomy and permitted the Ottawa central government to unduly interfere under the guise of war needs. Duplessis asserts the recent expropriation of the Montreal Power company by the government was an act of bolshevism.

Andre Laurendeau, leader of the Bloc Populaire, goes further. He asserts the Liberals have acquiesced in conscription, tolerated the gift of billions to England. He charges that goods given by the Canadians to England were later sold to Australia. Laurendeau demands a Canadian flag, no conscription and "full responsibilities of nationhood for Canada."

Political observers here believe Godbout will win but will lack an absolute majority over the other two parties.

Quebec Women to Vote.

Among the complexities of the election is the fact that Quebec women will vote in a provincial election for the first time. Soldiers serving outside the province will not vote.

Because of the racial antagonism between the English and the French the Quebec campaign has been bitter. It has been characterized by impassioned denunciations and speakers have dealt with such explosive material as religious strife, resistance to conscription, federal interference with local government, the secession of Quebec from Canada, and the setting up of a separate state embracing all of French speaking Canada in the Valley of the St. Lawrence.

Talk with the man in the street in Quebec reveals the French speaking Canadian is still ardently opposed to participation in the war. The government despite pressure has never been able to resort to conscription for overseas service, altho men are drafted for home defense.

Reds Seize Pskov; Enter Lublin

(Story in adjoining column.)

RUSSIANS SEIZE PSKOV; FIGHT IN LUBLIN STREETS

LONDON, July 24 [Monday]—(AP).—Russian armies pouring swiftly thru crumbling enemy lines in Poland yesterday fought their way into the big rail city of Lublin within 25 miles of the Wisla [Vistula] river—last axis defense barrier short of Germany. Farther south the Red army reached the San river on a 25 mile front only 150 miles from German Silesia.

In the north Moscow announced that other soviet forces had toppled Pskov, gateway to southern Estonia, and swept to within 72 miles of Riga, Latvian capital on the Baltic sea, in a well-timed pincers movement aimed at destroying perhaps 300,000 German troops anchored in the Baltic states.

Seven powerful Red armies attacking on a 750-mile front from Estonia to the Carpathian foothills scored their biggest gains yet in the gigantic summer offensive, overrunning 1,450 towns and villages—most of them on the direct roads to Warsaw and Germany.

Part of 1939 Border.

The threat to German Silesia developed in a broad Russian sweep to a point 65 miles inside southern Poland. The San river was part of the 1939 border demarcation between Russia and Poland. In this sector the Russians had by-passed Lwow, German bastion and rail center. Nazi broadcasts said the Russians also were attacking in the outskirts of Lwow.

Below Lwow the Russians attacking thru the Carpathian foothills had reached the Guila Lipa river along its entire length. The river rises 25 miles southeast of Lwow and flows southward into the Dnestr.

Another Red army fought its way into the streets of Lublin, in the heart of old Poland 95 miles southeast of Warsaw, and also took a town to the northwest only 88 miles from Warsaw. Lublin was a city of 120,000 population and the site where Adolf Hitler had planned a large ghetto for Europe's Jews.

Last Nazi Bastion in Russia.

Premier Stalin in an order of the day announced the fall of Pskov, one of Russia's oldest cities which the Germans had captured on July 18, 1941. This cleared the Germans from their last holding of any consequence in Russia proper.

Pskov, with a normal population of 52,000 was where Czar Nicholas signed his abdication on March 15, 1917. Eleven months later the city became the center of the revolution that brought the Lenin-Stalin forces into power and paved the way for the present soviet union.

Pskov fell to the 3d Baltic army which then sped on toward the nearby southern Estonian border in a drive aimed at smashing 30 German divisions in the Baltic states. To the southeast, other Russian units coiling around Daugavpils, Latvia, cut the railway to the northeast. Daugavpils communications to the west already had been severed.

In northern Poland the Russians surged within 11 miles of Bialystok on the southeast. Russian troops attacking 37 miles northwest of Brest Litovsk were within 75 miles of Warsaw on the northeast.

Northeast of Lwow the Russians killed 30,000 and captured 15,000 Germans in wiping out four trapped German divisions. Another German general was captured, and a second, a Maj. Gen. Beitler, was killed.

The Red army at Lublin was only 395 airline miles from Berlin. Moscow dispatches pointed out that the Red army in one month had advanced 310 miles.

GERMAN WAR REPORT.

Sunday's German war report as broadcast by Berlin and recorded in New York by the Associated Press said:

"At the eastern front a defense battle continues to rage with the greatest embitterment. In the Lwow area enemy spearheads reached the eastern outskirts of the city. Farther to the northwest soviet motorized units are pushing forward toward the San and west of the upper Bug into the Lublin area.

"Between Brest Litovsk and Grodno, too, heavy fighting is in progress. Numerous soviet attacks were repelled. The enemy who had broken into our lines was checked. Northwest of Grodno the soviets were thrown back farther toward the east in a counter-attack.

"Northeast of Kaunas our brave grenadiers checked repeated soviet attacks. Between Daugavpils and Lake Peipus strong soviet infantry and tank forces were repulsed in general.

"The ruins of Ostrov and Pskov were evacuated after the destruction of all war-important installations."

FRESH TROOPS WILL BE RUSHED TO ALL FRONTS, SAYS BERLIN

LONDON, July 23 (AP).—The German radio said tonight that fresh reënforcements would be rushed to all fronts under a program of redoubling the war effort under Hitler and Himmler.

"We stand on the threshold of Germany's greatest war effort," the broadcast said. "Fresh divisions which have been stationed inside the reich will arrive at the fronts. Watch the bearing of the German troops at the front!"

A broadcast by DNB, German news agency, from Milan, said "Italian prisoners of war from Badoglio's army, who had been brought to Germany after the Italian armistice, now will participate in Germany's war effort."

BLAST BLEW OFF HITLER'S PANTS, LATEST VERSION

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, July 23 (AP).—The Berlin correspondent of Stockholm Dagens Nyheter said today concrete rumors in Berlin were that a German "teller mine" placed under a map desk in Hitler's headquarters caused the explosion that slightly injured the fuehrer.

Another Swedish correspondent telephoned that the explosion blew off Hitler's trousers as well as those of the whole party of 14 standing around the table. Hitler, said the correspondent changed his uniform, and when Mussolini arrived he held up the ragged pants to show the duce what had happened.

Hitler was said to have been wounded in the right shoulder and back and had his hair singed. "It doesn't matter," he was quoted, "because my barber always fails to cut my hair short enough." He was described as "the calmest man in the group."

SUSPECTS JAM BERLIN PRISONS, MADRID HEARS

MADRID, Spain, July 22 (AP).—The Alexander Platz jail and other prisons in Berlin are packed with arrested civilians and army officers, mostly the latter, inhabitants of the German capital informed friends in Madrid by telephone today.

There are rumors thruout Berlin of many executions, but Berliners themselves apparently were as much in the dark concerning the number as was the outside world.

URGE CHURCHILL TO STATE TERMS TO HITLER NOW

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 23.—Demands that the allies announce clear cut surrender terms to Germany have been intensified here since the news of the attempt against Hitler's life. In addition to Laborites such as Richard Stokes and Emanuel Shinwell, who have consistently urged in the house of commons that the government should make its position clear, the conservative Sunday Observer today supports the complaints that allied political warfare is too weak and now is the time to tell the Germans the price for calling off the war.

The Observer concedes that the generals' attempt against Hitler "may well come too late to be immediately successful."

Referring to Chancellor of the Exchequer John Anderson's statement to commons that the time has not yet arrived for such a declaration, the Observer asks: "Has it not even after last week's events?"

Wipe Out Enemy

Simi Island (arrow), where raiders struck.

CAIRO, Egypt, July 23 (AP).—British and Greek shock troops intent on disrupting supply lines in the Aegean Islands wiped out the entire garrison of Simi Island near Rhodes in a raid, it was disclosed today.

Fifteen German and Italian troops were killed and more than 150 captured in what was described as one of the most daring and successful raids ever undertaken in the eastern Mediterranean. The swoop upon Simi, a tiny island just off the Turkish coast was disclosed as reports increased that Turkey might be veering toward war against Germany.

All military installations and equipment on Simi were destroyed before the raiders escaped "with very slight losses," an official announcement said. The Germans rushed 300 men to the island by sea the next day, and Junkers-88's plastered the empty town while an allied rear guard watched from a mountain hideout.

HITLER, JUNKERS ARE PAIR PERILS, SWEDES TOLD

Both Hitler and the Junkers military group which has revolted against him must be eliminated to avoid a third world war, Carl Hjalmar Lundquist, assistant corporation counsel, told 2,000 persons who gathered in Kolze's grove yesterday for the 31st annual outing of the Swedish National Society of Chicago.

"If Hitler succeeds in wiping out the Junkers," he said, "the allies will have only Hitler to destroy. Otherwise, we will have to eliminate both elements to guard against a war which sons of the present Junkers would start in the future."

U. S. CEMETERY ON RUSSIAN SOIL HOLDS 2 FLYERS

A UNITED STATES AIR BASE IN RUSSIA, July 23 (AP). — Two Americans who flew side by side in bombing Germany now lie side by side in Russian soil in the first United States cemetery of this war in the soviet union.

The cemetery, covering two and a half acres, was established near the headquarters of the eastern command of the United States strategic air forces, the center of the Russian shuttle bombing bases. It is the only place in Russia where the United States flag flies daily. In Moscow the embassy and other American establishments display the flag only on holidays.

The first two men buried there were Lt. Raymond C. Estle, Gothenburg, Neb., and Flight Officer Joseph G. Lukacek, North Bergen, N. J., the pilot and co-pilot of a Flying Fortress, who flew here from England and died the night of June 21 during a German raid on one of the bases.

Report Nazis Shoot 3 U. S. Airmen in Germany

Zurich, Switzerland, July 23 (AP).—The Neue Zurcher Zeitung today said three American aviators who parachuted to German soil near Konstanz had been shot by the Germans.

JAPS BREAK INTO HENGYANG, BUT ARE HURLED OUT

Chinese Attack City Sixty Miles North.

CHUNGKING, China, July 23 (AP).—Chinese troops were said by the high command tonight to be pressing attacks to drive the Japanese out of Siangsiang, Japanese stronghold 60 miles north of besieged Hengyang and western anchor of a long enemy line north of the rail junction.

But at Hengyang, Japanese troops again penetrated to Chinese positions within the Canton-Hankow railway city itself, a bulletin acknowledged. The high command said this attack was thrown back as fighting continued with unabated fury, and indicated the Chinese were attempting to break the encirclement ring to the southwest of the city, attacking Japanese positions there and reaching a southwestern suburb.

The bulletin said Chinese were "mopping up" east, west and south of Siangsiang, and added that "our troops now are attacking enemy units holding out in Siangsiang and the northern suburbs of the city."

Japs Turned Back.

To the south in Kwangtung province, where the Japanese drive is aimed at a junction along the Canton-Hankow road with the Hunan forces, the enemy was turned back at Tsingyun, where fighting has raged for a number of days, the Chinese said. Tsingyun is west of the railway, about 35 miles north of the Canton area.

In the air, American planes continued their support of Hunan ground troops, bombing the provincial capital of Changsha several times and causing fires that could be seen for 60 miles, Lt. Gen. Joseph W. Stillwell's headquarters said.

Japanese-held rail yards in the Hengyang area and enemy troops in the sector were struck savagely by American planes, and along the shallow Siang, the Japanese line of supply by river was hit hard. An estimated 170 supply boats were sunk in river sweeps north of Hengyang and south of Changsha. An additional 55 supply boats and an 80 foot enemy troop ship were sunk between Hengyang and Siangtan.

Gain at Myitkyina.

SOUTHEAST ASIA HDQ., Kandy, Ceylon, July 23 (AP).—Allied troops have registered new gains in the southeastern and western sectors of Myitkyina, killing a large number of Japanese in the besieged north Burma city, allied headquarters announced tonight.

A 100-yard gain was made from the southeast against bitterly resisting Japanese, and local gains were made in the west, a bulletin said.

Little organized resistance is being met in the Manipur hills of India by British troops advancing down the Tiddim road and now about 32 miles away from Imphal, but progress has been delayed by demolitions and swift river currents.

One force has crossed the Khuga river, flowing out of the Kuki hills into the Imphal plain, the bulletin said.

GERMANS LOSE 156,000 MEN IN NORMANDY FIGHT

SUPREME HDQ. ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, July 24—[Monday]—(AP).—Staff officers today estimated the Germans have lost an estimated 156,000 soldiers, including more than 60,000 prisoners, since D-day.

The allied bag of prisoners since the invasion started was placed at 60,958, of which 50,549 were taken by the Americans. This indicated Field Marshal Rommel's overall losses were equivalent to 10 to 15 full divisions.

The British said they had inflicted more than 53,000 casualties, including 10,409 captured. Americans said that in addition to the prisoners taken they had buried 8,094 Germans. On the basis of five wounded to every man killed, German wounded on the American front were estimated at 45,000.

FOUR MORE JAP MINISTERS TURN IN RESIGNATIONS

Treasury, Business Secretaries Quit.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Gen. Nobuyuki Abe has resigned as president of the Imperial Rule Assistance Political Society, parliamentary wing of the Imperial Rule Assistance association, Japan's totalitarian party, the Tokyo radio said yesterday in the wake of Japan's government shakeup.

Abe resigned because of "unavoidable circumstances," said the broadcast, adding that Tsuneo Kamemitsu would act as president of the society until a permanent chief was named.

Munitions Chief Quits.

Another broadcast said Shansuke Kishi had resigned as vice minister of munitions, a post he held under former Premier Tojo, and that Etsasaburo Shina, described as "director of the total mobilization bureau," had been ordered to take the position.

Two other resignations, those of Ryusaku Endo, treasury secretary, and Kiyonosuke Hashimoto, director of the business affairs bureau of the party, also were reported.

Presumably Abe and the others resigned because of the formation of a new government under Gen. Kuniaki Koiso, following the downfall of Tojo's cabinet.

"No Change in Policy."

Domei news agency, in a report of an address delivered yesterday by Mamoru Shigemitsu, new foreign minister and minister of greater east Asiatic affairs, said the minister promised there would be no change in Japanese war time diplomatic policy.

The broadcast said the government thru coöperation with its ally would prosecute the war to a successful conclusion "thereby to realize the ideals stipulated in the joint declaration of the greater east Asiatic nations."

Premier Koiso told correspondents Japan would "further strengthen her ties with Germany in positive pursuit of the common war objective," the Domei agency reported.

Koiso also said, "Efforts will be made toward befriending neutral countries in order that they may offer positive coöperation to Japan," and that Japan would "maintain friendly relations with the soviet union and exert her best efforts in order to avoid unnecessary provocations."

RUSSIA REPORTS NEW CIVIL RULE IN POLISH AREAS

LONDON, July 23 (AP).—The Moscow radio said today the Polish national council had announced from Warsaw the formation of the Polish Committee of National Liberation.

The decree said the committee would be in charge of civil administration in liberated areas. The broadcast was made on behalf of the Union of Polish Patriots.

The action appeared to supplant the Polish London government in Polish areas liberated by the Russians. The soviet government refuses to recognize the London government.

BOMBERS SMASH GERMAN SUPPLY LINES IN FRANCE

LONDON, July 24 [Monday].—Allied planes based in Britain and Normandy used every opening in heavy overcast yesterday to smash at enemy communications behind the lines in Normandy as clouds lifted to 4,000 feet.

R. A. F. tactical air force and bomber command planes, United States 8th air force heavyweights, and 9th air force fighter bombers and mediums smashed at bridges, airdromes, railways, truck transport, radar stations, and fuel dumps. The weather kept major forces away from bomb pitted Germany.

Last night 125 Marauder and Havoc bombers set fire to German fuel dumps in the Conches area for the sixth time. They attacked railway bridges near Rouen and Le Havre, following up heavy daylight attacks on half a dozen rail targets between the front and Paris.

YANKS BATTLE WAY INTO PISA, CITY OF TOWER

won. We have smashed our way to the lower banks of the Arno in a six mile stretch from the Tyrrhenian sea to Pisa and control that side of the stream for a considerable distance inland, but the crossing will be bitterly opposed at every point.

The Germans have an advantage by being on Mount Pisano. That western outpost of the Gothic line commands the flat countryside.

As the Nazis retreated from Livorno to Pisa they demolished bridges and viaducts, erected road blocks and sowed mines.

Engineers Clear Path.

They did not fool the Yank engineers, however. Hundreds of mines, rendered harmless by these men, were stacked at the roadsides today and bulldozers were fashioning bypasses at bridges.

German 88s and 170 millimeter shells crumped all around but our vehicular and doughboy traffic moved.

The zero hour for our thrust into Pisa was 10 o'clock Saturday night. I watched some of the takeoffs.

There was no artillery preparation and no tank support, for the plan was to advance by stealth and if possible keep the enemy ignorant of the move until daylight.

There was only a thin sliver of moon and it shed no betraying light as the G. I.'s set out, most of them from positions two miles south of Pisa.

One Group Detected.

One detachment, slanting northeast, encountered no opposition and reached its objective, the railroad track just south of the city. Other soldiers, going northwest, ran into trouble in the canal area. They were discovered and small arms and self-propelled guns pinned them down most of the night.

A third detachment, moving almost due north, disposed of a few German patrols, reached its objective and protected the flank of the second American group.

German fire was intensified as dawn approached, but by then the Yanks were strong enough at the right spots to more than hold their own. A few hours later the entrance into Pisa was effected.

British Capture Town.

ROME, July 23 (AP).—British troops of the 8th army captured Citta di Castello today while other units swarmed over the northern slopes of Monte San Michele to within 15 miles of Florence, the allied headquarters bulletin said.

On the Adriatic sector the Poles pushed thru mounting enemy resistance to within three miles of Senigallia, 17 miles northwest of Ancona.

Woman Fetes Visitors on Her 103d Birthday

TOWER AT PISA LEANS BECAUSE BUILDERS ERRED

City a Storehouse of Art Treasures.

The northern Italian city of Pisa, now echoing to the thunder of German and American guns, is famed for its leaning tower but is also a storehouse for other architectural treasures. The famous tower, the white marble cathedral and other points of interest for the traveler are in the old section on the north bank of the river.

It was from the leaning tower that Galileo, the astronomer and physicist, dropped the wooden balls and worked out his calculations on the velocity of falling bodies.

Tower's Slant Unintended.

The builders did not intend that their 179-foot bell tower should lean when they began it in 1173, but one side of the foundation was bedded in soft earth, and after 35 feet of the tower had been built the structure began to lean.

By the time the last tier was added the tower was leaning almost 14 feet from perpendicular.

The Campo Santo, or burial ground, was established in 1203 when an archbishop is supposed to have imported 53 shiploads of earth from Jerusalem in order that the dead might rest in holy ground.

Old in Rome's Youth.

Pisa was old when Rome was a village and was a place of some importance before the foundations of Troy were laid 1,600 years before the Christian era.

When the Normans were conquering England, Pisa was an important seaport, competing with Venice and Genoa. The city was once only two miles from the sea, but the soil brought down by the Arno spread out a delta that has left Pisa about seven miles away.

Pisa once was a center of medieval art but yielded to its neighbor 42 miles east on the Arno, Florence, which also is in the path of the allied armies in Italy.

ADM. KING TOURS SAIPAN; CALLS IT VITAL AIR BASE

Praises Fleet Action in Taking Island.

BY HAROLD SMITH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SAIPAN, Marianas Islands, July 18 [Delayed]—Adm. Ernest J. King, commander in chief of the United States fleet, told newsmen on his departure from a full day's tour of captured Saipan today that this island will play a vital part in the remainder of the war against Japan.

"Saipan is a very fine island," Adm. King said just before he and his party boarded special planes to carry them back to Honolulu. With the party were Adm. Chester W. Nimitz, commander in chief of the Pacific fleet; Vice Adm. Randall Jacobs, chief of the navy bureau of personnel, and other high naval men. Yesterday and today the visitors were conducted on a tour of Saipan with Rear Adm. Richmond Keely Turner, commander of the amphibious force of the Pacific fleet; Lt. Gen. Holland Smith, commander of the fleet marine forces in the Pacific, and members of the island staff.

"I'm glad we've got Saipan," Adm. King continued. "It means a great deal in our future plans for operations in the Pacific. I can tell you that the Japs don't like our having it. This is the first sizable land mass that we have had to take in the Central Pacific and, as you know, it required three divisions to take it in good time."

Jap Navy "Uncoöperative."

"Obviously there are other important islands in the Marianas to be taken in good time.

"Within a radius of 1,500 miles of Saipan—or Guam—lie such places as Formosa, the southern Philippines and a wide range of objectives. These are in a sense positions that give us the advantage of what are known as interior lines from which we can strike in a number of directions.

"Our near fleet action in this operation was satisfactory. Naturally we could have wished to have had more coöperation from the Japanese navy. [The admiral here presumably was referring to the challenge hurled by Adm. Nimitz and other American leaders at the Jap fleet to come out and fight.]

Get's First Hand Picture.

"The enemy's fleet reaction was fully expected and thoroly prepared for by Nimitz. The closer we get to the Japanese homeland the more coöperation we can expect to get from the Jap fleet.

"I am impressed with the stiffness of the terrain on Saipan and with the Japanese fanaticism which presupposes that they must be killed before giving up. I think taking this island in three weeks was very satisfactory."

Adm. King emphasized that his trip nearly halfway around the world was made not for supervisory reasons, but to give him a first hand picture of conditions which will have an important bearing on forthcoming plans. "I visited Adm. Nimitz to look and listen and not do very much talking," he said.

King expressed the opinion that "the Japs did not like our naval gun fire and in general were not able to stand up under our artillery fire."

Adm. Nimitz disclosed that it was the original intention for the party to visit Mount Tapotchau, Saipan's highest peak, which rises 1554 feet above the ocean, but the plan was canceled because patrols the day before the party's arrival killed 21 enemy snipers in the area.

Praises News Accuracy.

"I was disappointed in not getting up there," Nimitz said.

Nimitz praised the accuracy and comprehensiveness of civilian correspondents' stories in this campaign. "They gave us a closeup on what was happening," he said. "We used the stories to supplement our own information."

FIGHT FOR PORT APRA

BY CHARLES P. ARNOT.
[Representing the combined United States press.]

ABOARD U. S. INVASION FLAGSHIP OFF GUAM, July 22 (AP).—Marine veterans supported by elements of the army's "Statue of Liberty" division are closing a pincers around the best harbor in the Marianas tonight, setting the stage for the seizure of Port Apra, on the island of Guam.

As the battle emerged from an amphibious drive for beachhead footholds into a mounting land offensive, Maj. Gen. Roy S. Geiger, commander of ground forces, said progress made during the first 48 hours of the invasion has met his every expectation. He warned that the full enemy strength was yet to be encountered.

Stalemate on Cliffs.

He described Japanese resistance on Guam as typical of that encountered in previous island warfare.

In the wake of two spirited counter-attacks, Japanese forces have been forced to settle for what might be called a stalemate in the battle on Chonito cliffs along the extreme left flank of the northern beachhead.

The first marine brigade and units of the 77th division have reported steady gains against sporadic opposition from the southern beachhead.

Maj. Gen. Allen H. Turnage's 3d marine division, which has hurled back the most determined enemy attack, clung to a difficult hillside position in the Chonito cliffs area, where one of the toughest actions of the campaign may develop, and launched a successful amphibious assault on little Cabras Island, which forms the north arm of Apra harbor.

Hand to Hand Fighting.

Striking at dawn, the Japanese blanketed the hillsides with a mortar barrage. Then they sent a battalion of troops against the 3d division, veterans of Bougainville, who were scattered in makeshift foxholes.

For several critical minutes the Japanese threatened to break thru. But they were no match for the American bombs, naval gunfire, grenades, and machine guns. At some points fighting was so close the marines and Japs slugged it out hand to hand.

Three hours after the assault began, Japanese stragglers who survived conceded failure and fled. No estimate was made of Japanese casualties. Col. Merwin H. Silverthorn, chief of staff for the 3d amphibious corps, described the attack as "both unsuccessful and costly."

Climb 200 Foot Hill.

Supported by bombardment from heavy cruisers and tanks where possible, marines clawed their way 200 feet up the hills in the face of determined enemy and machine gun fire.

Behind the crest of Chonito cliffs the Japanese have entrenched themselves in an elaborate series of caves and dugouts.

This flank faces the city of Agana, peace time capital of Guam, whose wreckage is still being shelled and bombed to prevent Japanese infiltration.

WOMAN'S HOME ROBBED.

Theft of her purse containing $8 and some papers from her home was reported to police yesterday by Mrs. Albert Veprek, 4626 N. Damen av.

M'ARTHUR'S MEN SINK SHIP 70 MI. OFF PHILIPPINES

ALLIED HDQ., New Guinea, July 24 [Monday]—(AP).—The Pacific war swung back into the Philippines today for the first time in two years, Gen. MacArthur announced:

"Our air patrols sank a coastal vessel 70 miles off the coast of Mindanao."

It was the first mention of the Philippines in a MacArthur bulletin since the fall of Corregidor May 6, 1942.

Official silence screening all activities in and around the Philippines thus has been lifted, and it may now be disclosed that American planes have been keeping a close watch for some time upon Japanese operations in those islands. No details of the reconnaissance were given.

Wait New Jap Attack.

A navy Liberator on reconnaissance sank the Japanese vessel, a 100 foot freighter, southeast of Mindanao, large southern island in the group, Saturday.

MacArthur's planes now are patrolling at least 800 miles northwest of the most advanced allied bases on Biak, Owi, and Noemfoor Islands, in Geelvink bay off Dutch New Guinea.

MacArthur's bulletin also disclosed that the Japanese trapped in the Wewak area of New Guinea still seem to be attempting to concentrate forces for new attacks upon the American defense line along the Drinimuor river 17 miles east of Aitape, despite recent setbacks.

Yap and Palau Bombed.

Beaufighters, Bostons, Thunderbolts, and Mitchells dropped 27 tons of bombs upon the enemy concentrations, while an American destroyer and patrol torpedo boats shelled the bivouac area.

Liberators from Guinea again gave support to the American landing operations on Guam, 552 miles to the northeast, by bombing Yap, Palau, and Woleai in the Carolines.

Halmahera, important island between New Guinea and Mindanao, also received its first heavy attack when Dutch manned medium bombers attacked several villages.

HAVOC OF ALLIED BOMBINGS TOLD BY REPATRIATES

LISBON, Portugal, July 23 (AP).—The first trains carrying British repatriates, most of them old residents of France and other occupied countries, arrived here today, completing the initial phase of an exchange of nationals with Germany.

The Swedish diplomatic exchange liner Drottningholm disembarked Germans affected by the exchange.

The first train bore 129 passengers, including 48 nuns and one priest. Nearly 300 persons came on two other trains.

The repatriates told of one train which left the German internment camp at Vittel in northern France on July 10. Because of wrecked bridges and tracks it had to be rerouted several times.

The train at one point was machine gunned by American planes, and the repatriates were ordered to "seek shelter anywhere in the nearby fields," one passenger said.

Passengers told of thousands of smashed locomotives and countless wrecked freight cars and passenger coaches strewn along the rights of way.

WAR PRISONERS GIVE UP STRIKE FOR HOT LUNCH

LONDON, July 23.—Italian prisoners of war who went on strike on Lincolnshire farms after demanding hot lunches instead of sandwiches which were the fare of their guards, have changed their minds.

Four days of bread and water and partial solitary confinement did the trick. The strike leaders today told the prisoner camp commandant they will return to work tomorrow.

Hot meals have been served to the prisoners in the evening, but they didn't want heavy dinners—they wanted hot lunches. But now they will eat sandwiches.

WINNETKA FLYER KILLED IN CRASH DURING AIR SHOW

Spokane, Wash., July 23 (AP).—Two of three attack bombers diving into an amphitheater at the Spokane air service command "stay-on-the-job" war show today collided and crashed as a huge crowd watched.

The dead included 2d Lt. William B. Scott, Winnetka, Ill. Three other fliers also were killed.

The 100,000 persons watching the show were almost silent as the planes hit and burst into flames as they fell onto the floor of the amphitheater.

Two Illinoisans Killed.

Savannah, Ga., July 23 (AP).—Ten army flyers were killed today in a plane crash 10 miles northwest of the Chatham field air base here, the public relations office reported. The plane, a B-24 bomber, was based at Chatham field and was on a training flight. The dead included 2d Lt. Sidney E. Palmateer, pilot, Union City Branch, Mich.; Pvt. Gilbert A. Spalding, gunner, Peoria, Ill., and Staff Sgt. Willard C. Johnston, Granite City, Ill.

Czech Exiles Planning to Build a New Lidice

New York, July 23 (AP).—Plans for a new Lidice, to be built in Czechoslovakia after the war, are being designed at Columbia university under the auspices of the Czechoslovakian government in exile, it was announced today by Leopold Arnaud, dean of the Columbia school of architecture.

NAZIS BELIEVED DELAYING HEAVY BLOW IN FRANCE

35 Divisions in Reserve, Says Col. Lanza.

BY COL. CONRAD H. LANZA.

[Regular contributor to the Field Artillery Journal and recognized as an authority on military matters.]

According to German estimates, when the invasion of France was launched the allies had about 80 divisions available in the British Isles, plus some 10 air borne divisions. The Germans estimate the Normandy campaign has involved 40 allied divisions, plus four air borne divisions, exclusive of two other air borne divisions claimed to have been destroyed.

On these estimates, taking into consideration only the line divisions, 50 per cent have been used while 40 divisions remain available either for a new invasion or to reenforce the present one.

The allies estimate that the total number of German divisions in France and the low countries in the past month has been increased from 60 to about 65. Of these between 25 and 30 are engaged in Normandy. Taking the larger figure this leaves 35 German divisions to meet the remaining allied 40 divisions.

Nazi Trains on the Move.

The allies have made a great effort to block German lines of communication in France. Nazi commentators claim the Germans, however, have found ways to get supplies and reserves forward.

Many parts of France contain no Germans. In these areas sabotage parties and some special troops are operating. From various reports, as of July 8, the Germans were sending 40 military trains from Strasbourg to Paris daily, while 20 other trains moved from Belfort to the same destination.

The railroad from Strasbourg to Paris is double track and partly four track. Its capacity has been 72 trains a day. Of these two trains were required to supply food and necessities to local communities. Whether the reduction from 70 to 40 military trains was caused by allied attacks on rolling stock or whether 40 trains is sufficient to carry whatever the Germans have to move is not known.

Germans Move in Guns.

Observers state that no Germans or German material is moving out of France. They particularly noted artillery and tanks going in. In corroboration, an increase in German artillery on the Norman front has been reported.

The capacity of the railroad from Belfort is about 48 trains a day. The reduction to 20 trains a day may be sufficient for current German needs.

The available evidence indicates that, despite the situation in Russia, the Germans have not decided to abandon France and withdraw to their own frontier. However, it is certain that the possibility that this may have to be done and has been planned for. This probably is being held in abeyance.

Rundstedt Policy Stands.

The new German commander in France, Marshal Guenther von Kluge, has not changed the policy of his predecessor, Marshal von Rundstedt. He isn't likely to.

This policy of not striking in strength before Gen. Eisenhower has committed most of his forces must have been known to the high command. Undoubtedly they approved it.

Altho not certain, it seems probable that Von Rundstedt was recalled from France to straighten out the Russian mess. He did this once before. He saved the German armies in front of Moscow during the hard winter of 1941-'42. He is not a Nazi, but he is a German. He has the reputation of being Germany's most competent general. Whether he has remained at general headquarters as executive, or whether he went on to Russia, is not known. The recent changes on the eastern front and the stiffening of German resistance point to planning by a new commander.

Germans Quick to Oust Rulers.

Von Rundstedt may well be one who sees the necessity of Hitler's disappearance. This writer was in Berlin shortly after the decease of President Ebert. He, too, had outlived his usefulness. He was given a chance to resign and retire. This he declined to do, so he was removed by a palace clique.

The Germans are a strong willed people. They do not hesitate to remove a ruler if they feel his presence is detrimental to the public good. But when they do so it means a serious crisis.

Plans an Investment of 217 Million.

Cost Estimates Advance.

Cost estimates have increased since the pre-war plans, and many engineers predict that they will be even higher when materials and men again are available.

The state is not abandoning its rural farm to market road program, said Wesley W. Polk, chief highway engineer, but so far as the primary system is concerned all post-war emphasis will be on the main routes into the metropolitan centers, which have been war time casualties of extra heavy loads on the bigger trucks. This means that future building will be concentrated around Chicago, with attention also being given the East St. Louis area and, to a lesser degree, such downstate centers as Peoria, Danville, Rock Island, and Rockford.

"The main roads were paved first, and hence were in the poorest condition," explained F. N. Barker, state highway research engineer. "They get the heaviest truck volume, even in normal times. Now that war time loads have been increased enormously, destruction of the highways has been hastened and roads have failed in three years where otherwise they would have lasted six."

Critical Materials Lacking.

Chiefly to rehabilitate heavily traveled routes, the state this year is spending some $10,500,000, Polk said, but full scale modernization must await the release of reinforcing steel and other critical materials, as well as the demobilization of soldiers and war workers. Portland cement is still the paving material to be used.

The state's 10 year program, which will be covered in future articles of this series, is designed to give motorists from all parts of the state easy access at least to the outer portion of Chicago's overcrowded street system.

Most spectacular will be the first superhighway across the state—U. S. 66, the Chicago-Springfield-St. Louis route. As planned by Rosenfield and Polk, it will be a four lane expressway, with two lanes in each direction divided most of the way by a parkway.

Grade separations and other modern safety features will be incorporated in the nonstop road, which is to be connected with the Chicago southwest superhighway along the abandoned Illinois and Michigan canal bed.

Land for Superhighways.

No more cross-state highways are actually in the blueprints, altho four-lane separated highways will be built for considerable stretches, and on major routes the state is buying enough land to handle a superhighway altho only a two-lane pavement is now planned. Grade separations are ordered wherever possible, and all officials have worked closely with Robert Kingery, who, as general manager of the Chicago Regional Planning association, is coördinator for new projects.

New belt lines, swinging traffic around cities, are mapped for Elgin, Woodstock, Dwight, Pontiac, Gilman, Kankakee, Galesburg, Alton, and some other downstate cities.

Illinois probably will have eight routes in the federal interregional highway system recommended by the federal public roads administration. Authorizing legislation for that system has not been enacted, but road men anticipate quick action with the election of a Republican congress in November.

Highpoints of Program.

Exact routes haven't been mapped, but these are good bets for an interregional system:

Route 66, Chicago to St. Louis, which will be a superhighway in any event.

Route 41, Skokie highway from Chicago to Milwaukee. It already has most of the safety and speed characteristics of a superhighway.

U. S. 40, the old national trail from St. Louis to Terre Haute, Ind.

U. S. 50, from St. Louis to Vincennes, Ind.

The interregional system would be of superhighway construction where traffic justified. The pavement would be built to stand up under the extra strain of heavy truck and military traffic.

Routes to Other Cities.

Similar highways thru other states would permit motorists from any part of the nation to have excellent connections into Chicago. There would be direct routes into such cities as Milwaukee, Madison, Wis., St. Paul, Minn., Des Moines, Ia., Kansas City, Mo., Memphis, Tenn., Indianapolis, Ind., Columbus, O., and Detroit, Mich.

State plans are going ahead and highway engineers have projects to restore, rebuild and often relocate highways leading toward such cities as Rockford, Rock Island-Moline, Ottawa, La Salle-Peru, Galesburg, Peoria, Dixon, Sterling, Champaign-Urbana, and Danville.

Financing is a major problem, even with federal grants and help from the state treasury surplus. President Charles M. Hayes of the Chicago Motor club said, however, that the situation had parallels with that of 20 years ago. Then there was a drive, with THE TRIBUNE in the forefront, for a bond issue that would permit narrow pavements to be widened. Many persons regarded that road program as economically impossible, but its adoption helped Illinois maintain its leadership in state wide highway systems, Hayes said.

Projects in State Road Program

DEWEY STUDIES AUG. 2 PROGRAM FOR GOVERNORS

Pawling, N. Y., July 23 (AP).—Gov. Dewey, hoping to have the agenda of the governors' conference, Aug. 2 and 3, in shape for discussion Wednesday with his running mate, Bricker, devoted last evening and most of today to the task.

As "host" to the conference, Dewey said he is giving careful attention to the discussion material because of the variety and complexity of subjects to be considered. The conference generally will explore areas of responsibility and obligation between the federal and state governments.

Gov. and Mrs. Bricker will arrive Wednesday morning in Albany, where the G.O.P. candidate for Vice President will confer on campaign plans with Dewey. The governor plans to return to Pawling Friday for the week end and leave New York City next Sunday night for the St. Louis conference.

Votes Swing to Dewey.

New York, July 23 (AP).—Herbert Brownell Jr., chairman of the Republican national committee, said today in analysis of mail received by him and the party's nominees for President and Vice President disclosed "increasing evidence of the great swing of normally Democratic voters to the Republican side."

PARTY CONTROL IN DOUBT AFTER TEXAS PRIMARY

F. D. R. Bloc Seeks Again to Rule Democrats.

Dallas, Tex., July 23 [Special].—Success of the strategy of pro-Roosevelt Democrats in state-wide precinct conventions held in connection with yesterday's primary remained in doubt tonight as Democratic county chairmen thruout the state sought to ascertain whether forces friendly to the Roosevelt-Truman ticket had captured control of party machinery.

From available scattered information, however, it was plain that supporters of the national Democratic ticket had taken the first step in a carefully matured plan to replace the present unpledged slate of Democratic electors with electors pledged by the party to cast their votes for Roosevelt and Truman in the electoral college.

This plan, it was revealed, involves attempted utilization of the state Democratic convention Sept. 12 as a vehicle for reversing action of the state convention May 23. This convention named party electors and instructed them that they need not support the party nominees unless the Democratic national convention restored the two-thirds rule and placed state sovereignty provisions in the party platform.

Seek to Reverse Stand.

Political leaders said today that ordinarily the party's fall convention is a routine affair whose sole function has been to certify the winners of primary contests. The Roosevelt Democrats, however, have advanced the contention that the gathering has all the powers exercised by the spring convention, including that of reversing previous convention action.

To that end, the pro-Roosevelt forces sought to insure control of the Sept. 12 convention by springing "Roosevelt resolutions" on the precinct conventions held yesterday. It was the function of these conventions, held in each precinct of the state at the conclusion of the primary balloting, to name delegates to county conventions scheduled to convene Saturday in each of the state's 254 counties. The county conventions will select delegates to the Sept. 12 state meeting.

Tabulation Delayed.

Reports from all sections of the state disclosed that most of the precinct gatherings were confronted with similarly worded resolutions instructing delegates to county conventions to vote as a unit "for delegates to the next state Democratic convention who will vote and work for the election of our President and for the election of Presidential electors who will vote for him."

How these resolutions fared in most of the precinct meetings was wholly a matter of speculation tonight in the absence of any attempt at statewide tabulation of results.

Reports from six widely scattered counties reaching Dallas were to the effect that a majority of pro-Roosevelt delegates were named in three counties and a majority of anti-Roosevelt delegates in three others.

Progress of the tabulation of primary voting tonight indicated that nine Texas congressmen were safely renominated and that four others were facing run-offs in the run-off primary Aug. 26. One congressman, Rep. Kleberg of the King ranch family, was defeated, and two-man contests in two districts were undecided.

Rayburn Victorious.

Judge J. M. Combs of Beaumont was nominated for the 2d district congressional seat made vacant by the retirement of Rep. Dies. The remaining four of the Texas 21 man congressional delegation were nominated without opposition.

Concededly victorious in primary contests were House Speaker Rayburn, 4th district, and Representatives Patman, 1st; Sumners, 5th; Thomas, 8th; Lyndon Johnson, 10th; Poage, 11th; Lanham, 12th; Worley, 18th, and Mahon, 19th. Those named without opposition were Representatives West, 15th; Thompson, 16th; Kilday, 20th, and Fisher, 21st.

Certain or possible runoffs were faced by Representatives Beckworth, 3d; Patton, 7th; Mansfield, 9th, and Russell, 17th. In the 6th district, Rep. Luther Johnson held a slight lead over Chester North of Waxahachie, and in the 13th, Rep. Gossett was ahead in a close race with State Sen. George Moffett of Chillicothe.

Gov. Coke Stevenson's tremendous majority over eight opponents continued to mount. He had 588,165 votes with only 41,811 recorded for his nearest opponent.

Both Political Parties Forecast Close Election

FALL ELECTION WILL BE CLOSE; N. Y. AN ENIGMA

Neither Party Has Enough to Win.

with a total of 53 votes. Such calculation would give the Republicans 244 electoral votes and the Democrats 238, with one state—New York—not accounted for.

New York is the great enigma of the election. It is the home of both the candidates for President. Mr. Roosevelt has carried it in the last three Presidential elections but by successively lessening pluralities. Beginning with 1942, however, when Dewey was elected governor and continuing in subsequent state, congressional, and local elections the trend has been Republican.

On the basis of the foregoing calculation, if the Republicans should carry New York they would win the election with 291 electoral votes. Capture of New York by the Democrats would give them the victory with 285 electoral votes.

The Republicans could carry New York and yet lose the election if the Democrats should carry Pennsylvania. Likewise the Democrats could carry New York and yet lose if the Republicans should take Massachusetts and Connecticut.

Off the record, Democratic leaders make no bones about admitting that they are relying on the war to carry their ticket to victory. They believe that the argument that you should not swap horses while crossing a stream will turn the trick. And most of them concede that if Germany should be knocked out of the war by November, the outcome of the election would be highly problematical, for in that event the horse swapping admonition would lose force.

Recognize National Trend.

This view, of course, is, in effect, an admission that on domestic policies the Democrats would be defeated and that only the war can save Mr. Roosevelt from defeat. The Democrats recognize that the results of the 1942 congressional and state elections and subsequent by-elections demonstrated that popular sentiment had turned against the New Deal and that the Democrats had lost the farm vote.

The chief bulwark of Democratic strength in this election will be the labor vote, federal payrollers, and the machine vote marshaled by Democratic bosses, in New York, Chicago, Jersey City, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Boston, and other large cities.

Even Democrats who are vigorously opposed to a fourth term will tell you that the party would have drafted Mr. Roosevelt if he had not already drafted himself, for he was commonly regarded as the only Democrat who stood the ghost of a chance of winning the election.

C. I. O. Role to Alienate Many.

There is widespread opinion among Democrats that the influential part taken in the nomination of the ticket by Sidney Hillman, chief of the Communist dominated CIO political action agency and American Labor party, bodes the Democratic party no good in this election. It is believed that it will alienate tens of thousands of conservative Democrats.

Most Democratic leaders, however, believe that such untoward tendencies will be neutralized by considerations arising from the war. And they are confident that Mr. Roosevelt, the most astute politician of our time, will not miss any opportunity to capitalize the war for the benefit of the party.

Already they are viewing with the utmost satisfaction Mr. Roosevelt's deft turning of his connection with military activities to political profit. Examples include his representation of himself not only as commander in chief of the army and navy, as provided by the Constitution, but as commander in chief of civilians and therefore entitled to their political support as a patriotic duty, as distinctly not provided by the Constitution.

Also viewed as calculated to influence the unthinking is the President's representation of himself as a military man by virtue of being commander in chief of the army and navy. This does further violence to the Constitution, but is designed to make the fallacious point that he is subject to retention in office as a "good soldier" obeying the command of his commander in chief, the people.

The acceptance of his nomination from a west coast naval base is also regarded as another shrewd suggestion for political effect that Mr. Roosevelt is indispensable to the successful conduct of the war.

Democratic leaders expect Mr. Roosevelt to attempt no speech making tour of the country but to confine himself to "war inspection" trips, possibly including visits to the battle fronts, and in contrast therewith to hold up to public obloquy as unpatriotic, if not seditious, any speaking tour by Gov. Dewey.

One suggestion heard frequently among Democrats as they were departing from the scene of their convention was that Mr. Roosevelt ought to show himself in public during the campaign to counteract the impression given by the official picture of him broadcasting his acceptance. This picture shocked the delegates beyond measure. In it the President looked like an extremely ill man.

That Mr. Roosevelt, at 62 the oldest nominee for the Presidency since Buchanan, is not in robust health was well known. The fact caused more serious consideration by the delegates of the qualifications of candidates for the Vice Presidential nomination than ever before, for they realized they must choose a man of Presidential caliber who, if Mr. Roosevelt should be reëlected but should not survive a fourth term, would become chief executive. But the delegates were wholly unprepared for so disturbing a photograph of Mr. Roosevelt.

GIRL, AGED 4, GIVES WARNING; 100 FLEE FIRE IN APARTMENTS

Four year old Charlotte McCabe became the heroine of a fire in a four floor apartment building at 3850 Ellis av, yesterday by sounding an alarm that enabled 100 other residents to leave safely as the flames spread to apartments on all floors.

Charlotte, who discovered the fire in a garbage chute, called to her mother, Mildred, who warned the other residents. Before Charlotte could be taken out she rescued her pet cat and four kittens. Her mother carried out her sister, Doreen, 9 months old. The damage was estimated at $5,000.

James Esposito, 11, of 910 S. Laflin st., was rescued by firemen last night in a fire which originated in the rear of 912 S. Laflin st., and spread to his home. The fire, which also attacked the building at 916, routed 50 persons from the three buildings and caused damage estimated at $5,000.

Fire believed to have been started by a lighted cigaret destroyed a wooden coach and damaged two others on storage tracks of the Lake st. elevated railroad branch, east of Hamlin av. The fire halted elevated trains for more than an hour and tied up surface line traffic in Lake st. for 15 minutes. The loss was estimated at $12,000.

NAVY HAS 1,149 FIGHTING SHIPS; TRIPLE 1940 SIZE

Washington, D. C., July 23 (AP).—The navy disclosed tonight that on Aug. 18, when the destroyer escort Grady is launched, the number of American fighting ships in service will be 1,149, or more than three times the total available when the fleet began to grow in 1940. In all types of vessels the navy now has more than 28,000 in service, exclusive of the tens of thousands of amphibious craft used in invasions.

When the navy began its intensive building program in July of that year, it had 383 combatant ships. Completion of the Grady, it added, will triple this total.

Many other fighting ships are under construction.

Small Ships Increase Tenfold.

It is in the less glamorous types of ships that the real extent of the navy's stupendous growth is shown, but figures are not available. Officially this fleet now comprises more than 10 times the number of such craft available in July, 1940, exclusive of small landing craft and yard and district vessels.

One indication of the probable total is found in the navy's statement that the number of craft of all types approximately doubled in the last year. Last September it was disclosed that ships of all types totaled 14,072, indicating there are at least 28,144 naval vessels.

Amphibious Craft Excluded.

Figures on the navy's amphibious craft, excluded from the total, were not disclosed, but on a recent occasion the navy said the amphibious craft totaled 48,267, with the building program expected to boost that number to probably 100,000.

In the air, too, the sea arm's growth continues, with the navy officially saying that planes now are 20 times the number in service in July, 1940. On that date navy planes numbered 1,744 of all types, indicating a present strength of fighters, bomber, torpedo, and scout planes of at least 35,000.

Personnel also is growing. The navy has announced that it needs 194,000 men by December 31 and another 189,000 by June 30, 1945, to man the new ships and planes and fill growing number of jobs at naval bases. Presidential approval, Navy Secretary Forrestal said, has been given to the increase which would raise the authorized personnel strength to 3,200,000 by the end of this year and to 3,389,000 by June 30, 1945.

ALL SET FOR PERFIDY.

The Democrats and those others who ran their convention for them have departed, some of them still bleeding.

None of the felicitations and pledges of support from defeated aspirants can gloss over the fundamental disunity among the factions of the party, which was apparent as the convention met and was made more apparent by the proceedings on the Stadium floor. Nothing at the convention changed the issue to be decided in the campaign, altho almost everything done there made it clearer.

Sen. Truman is to run for Vice President. He has won notice thru the investigations of the conduct of the war by his senatorial committee. He came to Chicago avowing that he was not a candidate. He was nominated by Sidney Hillman, whose "Speak for yourself Harry" is destined to be remembered in political history; ratified by Roosevelt, who thereby confirmed his perfidy to his own Vice President; managed by Hannegan, who first attracted national notice by his attempt to steal a governorship, and rammed over in the convention by Hague, Kelly, and the rest of the machine bosses, who will let principles go hang if they can just get the jobs.

Sen. Truman won the nomination, not because of any virtues he may possess, but because of the fatal defects of the other candidates. In picking his running mate, Mr. Roosevelt had to keep the three factions of his supporters—the CIO and Communists, the slot machine bosses from the big cities, and the conservative, Negro-fearing southerners—from flying apart.

Mr. Wallace was unsatisfactory not only to the south, but to the machine bosses as well, who have to think of carrying their local and state tickets as well as the national one. The Hagues recognized that the name of the ranting, star-gazing Vice President on the ticket would cost them millions of votes. Byrnes was poison to the radicals, and Douglas, a radical, to the southerners. Barkley had rebelled against the President, and his nomination would have led to talk of "two old men."

Scott Lucas and the rest of the favorite sons never had real consideration, altho the sour expression caught by a photographer on the Illinois senator's face as Mayor Kelly grabbed simultaneously for a microphone and the Truman bandwagon indicates that Mr. Lucas' realization that it was all in fun came very late in the day. Poor Scott. He still has to run for senator.

That left only Sen. Truman. He had the benison of Hillman, in spite of the vituperation that the CIO's booing and cheering section in the packed gallery vented on every opponent of Wallace. As a machine politician, he was acceptable to the machine bosses. Since he comes from a border state, it was hoped that the southerners wouldn't gag.

It is availability, and not any turn to the right by Roosevelt, that explains the nomination of Sen. Truman. The nomination, like the platform, was part of the President's quadrennial deception. He does not abandon his revolutionary schemes; he merely finds it convenient at election time to give the impression that he intends to drop them. He dumped Wallace for that purpose this year, just as he packed Tugwell off in 1936. It is Roosevelt who is running for President, not Truman.

Some Democratic orator declared during the week that "Roosevelt is our platform," which was as good a formula as any for dismissing that document from public attention. After three experiences with the candidate's treatment of his campaign pledges, the voters are not likely to be stirred by any promises the party makes the fourth time. In 1932 he pledged economy, and within six months started the nation downhill toward bankruptcy. In 1936 he spoke of a "breathing spell," and gave the nation the CIO riots and the court packing scheme within 90 days. In 1940 he promised "again and again and again," when at that very moment the navy and Coast Guard were waging undeclared war in the Atlantic.

The 1944 platform can best be judged by a phrase inserted and a paragraph stricken out, both at Roosevelt's behest. The phrase that was inserted pledged this nation "to employ armed forces"—an international police force—to maintain world peace. The paragraph deleted was that which pledged that any commitment of the United States to a world organization would be ratified in constitutional fashion, by a two-thirds vote of the senate.

Mr. Roosevelt's sole use of a platform is to drop in a few words here and there to which he can refer, if he is elected, as a "mandate" from the voters. The phrase he inserted and the paragraph he struck out betray the mandate he seeks this year. It is a mandate to destroy the Republic.

OPERA AND BASEBALL.

Miss Cassidy in commenting on the production of "Aida" at Soldiers' field the other evening observed that "the acting was routine." Of course it was. There are only two occupations which have been fully standardized. One of them is opera singing or rather opera acting and the other is professional baseball playing.

Once a year in midseason the best in the American league plays the best in the National league. Each squad consists of a few men drawn from each of eight clubs. The men on a team have never played together as a team except for a few brief practice sessions, but they work together perfectly, even in such intricate coöperative efforts as a double play. The reason they can do so is that a baseball team is composed of interchangeable parts. A well-routined second baseman fits into any team as neatly as a new sparkplug fits into the place of an old one or a new soprano can take her place in any opera company. That doesn't mean, of course, that all second basemen are equally proficient; it means merely that in given circumstances, all second basemen will attempt to do the same thing at the same time in the same way. The first stringer may do it better than the substitute, but they will agree on what ought to be done and how. It takes weeks of practice and playing together to make a football squad, even when composed of professionals, into a team, but the same result can be achieved in baseball and grand opera in a couple of hours and, in a pinch, with no rehearsal at all.

Just as there are some second basemen who can cover more ground than others, so there are Aidas who can sing more sweetly and move more gracefully than others. But all Aidas try, within the limits of their abilities, to act exactly as all other Aidas do. Aida is as standardized as ss. or lf. It's a pity that opera performances cannot go into the record book in box scores showing hits, errors, and assists.

THIS IS THE TIME TO GAIN AIR RIGHTS.

From the tremendous number and the superior quality of the airplanes the United States has put into the skies all over the world to defeat our enemies many Americans conclude that their country is going to dominate world commercial aviation after the war. We have turned out more planes and better planes than all the other countries on earth together. Certainly we shall have no shortage of skilful young pilots, navigators, and engineers for commercial flight.

We shall need more than that. We must have what our state department calls "freedom of transit" to fly over foreign countries and "right of commercial entry" to set down and take off pay loads from airports in those countries. We may have the ships and the men, but most of them will be grounded in the United States unless we obtain air rights. The New Deal administration has made only a few faltering steps in this direction. In 1940 our state department entered into an agreement with Canada for reciprocal operation of American and Canadian airlines over a few routes connecting the two countries. A Canadian line got the right to fly nonstop from Toronto to New York, and American lines got rights from Buffalo to Toronto, Boston to Montreal, and Fargo to Winnipeg. This agreement was extended in 1942 for the duration of the war.

Since then the only move toward obtaining post-war air rights for America has been a series of what the state department calls "exploratory" conferences between the United States and a Canadian delegation in Washington. The British have not been at all hesitant about securing post-war flying rights for the United Kingdom. They signed a treaty with the emperor of Ethopia guaranteeing England's aviation rights in that country and containing the clause that no other foreign nation can obtain freedom of transit or right of commercial entry by air in Ethiopia without England's approval. This treaty can be expected to set a pattern for other such contracts England will obtain, secretly or otherwise, thruout the world.

Already the British Overseas Airways corporation advertises itself in colonial papers which seldom reach this country "in war as in peace . . . the only organization which planned and operated a two way air route across the North Atlantic thruout the winter. . . ." This advertisment says that, "with full acknowledgment of the achievements of other nations, we know that our own personnel is the finest in the world . . ." and promises that when peace comes "their accumulated experience and their genius will again be at your personal service."

The safe and economical routes from this country to Europe, whether over the Atlantic or the polar regions, must cross Canada or use a Canadian port for take-off. Now is the time for us to obtain the necessary rights, while the countries with whom we must bargain still are depending on us for victory. An American administration with a realistic attitude in its foreign dealings would have recognized this fact long ago and would have our post-war air rights already well protected thru the acquisition of bases, freedom of transit, and right of commercial entry all over the world.

LAW RESTORED IN HAWAII.

Lt. Gen. Robert C. Richardson has relinquished his title of military governor of Hawaii and has announced that necessary security measures now can be taken care of "by virtue of my title of commanding general of the Central Pacific area." This action is a triumph for the American Constitution and redounds to the credit of Judge Delbert Metzger who denounced the violation of civil rights by the military. It was Judge Metzger, sitting on the federal bench in Hawaii, who fined Gen. Richardson for contempt of his court after the general, as military governor, held that the court had no authority. This dispute was settled in a truce after public opinion massed behind Judge Metzger and prevented the military totalitarians from disbanding his court.

Public opinion also forced the New Deal totalitarians to retreat in the Montgomery Ward & Co. case after they had seized that company's Chicago retail establishment by military force and were attempting to operate it under military law in direct violation of the Constitution. Another federal judge, William H. Holly, had an opportunity to distinguish himself on behalf of constitutional liberty in this case, but the Roosevelt administration backed away at the last minute and he let them get off unscathed.

There remains now only the mass trial of so-called seditionists in Washington to disgrace the justice department.

HAPPY FAMILY ISLANDS.

Let us glance at the Bonin Islands as they appear on large scale maps of the western Pacific. They seem to form a stretch of picket fence for Japan's front yard, and American bombers have begun to visit them regularly. No wonder, then, that Nippon has just shivered thru a cabinet crisis.

These Bonins have been inconspicuous in history, and Japan paid no attention to them until 1861. They may have been uninhabited, for their name is an altered spelling of the Japanese word "bunin," meaning "empty of men." They have been renamed Ogasawara, after the captain of a Japanese junk who discovered them in 1593. Commodore Perry reported to the American government in 1853 that the best of these Bonins would make an excellent coaling station. He named it Peel Island, but nothing happened.

The Japanese have named the ten largest as if they formed the cast of characters for a domestic comedy. This is, we think, the most amusing job of island-naming in the world. Calling them off from north to south, they are: Muko, Nakadachi, Yome, Ototo, Ani Shima, Chichi, Haha, Mei, and Ani Jima. [The Japanese nouns, "shima" and "jima" follow the names of each; both words mean "island."] Now let's translate the names into English: Bridegroom, Go-between or Marriage Broker, Bride, Younger Brother, Elder Brother, Father, Mother, Niece, and Elder Sister.

The Bonins are rugged and hilly; their vegetation is heavy and almost tropical. The trees include palms, cedar, rosewood, ironwood, boxwood, and sandalwood. Pineapples grow wild. Ferns are luxuriant. Earthquakes are frequent, and the sea along the coral shores often behaves curiously, withdrawing for long distances and then swelling high up against the coasts. Volcanic submarine disturbances are believed to explain this phenomenon, which resembles tidal waves but lacks their violence.

So much for the Bonins, from which the Japs have barred foreigners for many years. Attacks upon them mean that we are moving around to third base.

North Shore's First Train.

Dec. 19, 1854, is a memorable date in the railroad history of the north shore. On that day the first train ran from Chicago to Waukegan. The engine was a 10-ton wood burner and the passenger coaches looked like baby carriages suspended on a platform. The engine had a silver-toned bell. The average rate of speed was 13 miles per hour.

Railroad men of that time did not wear uniforms. Conductors appeared in Prince Alberts and high silk hats with "conductor" on the hat bands, in silver letters. Engines were given the names of towns, railroad officials, or Indian chiefs. Cloud, Kehotaw, Black Hawk, Walking Thunder, and Shabbona are a few of the Indian chiefs whose names appeared. When Shabbona's engine came into the station he would stand beside it and call the attention of the traveling public to his name by exclaiming, "Shabbona, me; Shabbona, me." Clyde D. Foster.

THE HEAVENLY SWARD.

The flowers that carpet the bomb-cratered earth,
Whence came they? What seed gave them birth?
Cowslips and speedwells and gay ladies' smocks
Cover the scars and the black fissured rocks;
Dogrose and poppies and celandine,
Wallflower, daffodils, eglantine,
Violets, buttercups, rosemary, rue,
Flowers that all English hedgerows knew,
They fill in the crannies, smile back at the sky
Where death, the gardener, went riding high;
Primroses lean across the brink,
Heaven and the ravaged earth to link,
Witnesses, these, from English sod
That the seeds of beauty are still from God;
And an English sward with daisies pied
Was a soldier's dream before he died.

M. A. A. asks: "What does the veterans' administration do when a veteran who is almost a complete invalid and cannot travel wishes to lodge a claim for compensation? Could his own physician make the examination?"

The veteran should first make application for compensation by mail to the nearest veterans' facility. If examination is required the veterans' administration sets the time and place. If the veteran is unable at that time to report he would so indicate and the facility would make arrangements to send one of its doctors or have the veteran picked up in an ambulance.

D. R. S. writes: "I joined the merchant marine in Chicago June 8, 1942, was assigned to the Locke Tarlton, and on July 20 my back was broken. I was hospitalized at Beardstown for three months and had to sign off liability. Could I still demand compensation?"

It would depend upon the circumstances of the accident. The war risk insurance under which you were insured is supposed to have disability clauses. Suggest you give us a complete statement to send to the war shipping administration.

PROTECT CHILDREN AGAINST CONTAGION.

WE will all welcome the day when we can take a pill or an injection and find ourselves fortified against the several maladies which beset mankind. We are well along the road in this endeavor and we can thank William Jenner for vaccination against a dangerous and disfiguring affliction — smallpox.

Since his era we have learned how to escape typhoid, typhus, Asiatic cholera, and many other disorders. Summer is the time to think about our little ones and how to arm them to resist childhood diseases. The baby doctor has probably begun the "shots." At any rate it is not too late to consider safeguarding our tots against whooping cough, diphtheria, tetanus [lockjaw], smallpox, and the like.

There seems to be no question about the value of the plan as it relates to whooping cough. Since the discovery of the causative organism, the Bordet-Gengou bacillus, the introduction of large doses of these killed microbes has accomplished much. During the last few years we have seen a gradually decreasing death rate from this ailment. Those who have been vaccinated successfully will either elude it entirely or will present light attacks. If a severe bout ensues, we may assume that the material used was either inert or improperly administered.

Diphtheria can be eradicated completely thru toxoid. If every youngster could receive this simple treatment there would be no carriers to spread the dreadful infection. This priceless agent may be combined with a substance which will ward off lockjaw. Thus we save our youngsters the possibility of contracting either diphtheria or tetanus, which may follow contamination of cuts and scratches.

There is no argument concerning the desirability of avoiding smallpox. While outbreaks are not numerous, the way to invite them is to neglect well established defense measures. So long as the general population has recourse to the method, widespread epidemics will be rare.

The world owes a debt of gratitude to George and Gladys Dick. They identified a certain type of germ as the cause of scarlet fever. They also developed a useful test for susceptibility and devised an immunizing regime. While this latter procedure has not been universally adopted, it has much value. Now and then, however, severe reactions are observed.

Protection against typhoid can be acquired readily. Every one should take advantage of this procedure when they leave home and go to some less hygienic spot. It is highly desirable for all members of the family if they are not sure that clean food and water are always available.

When it comes to measles we have no specific vaccine as yet. But we can utilize serum from a recovered case or from the father or mother. Some immunity will thus be conferred so that if the disease comes, it will be mild.

After all, the counsel of the family doctor should govern. He is well informed on these preventives and knows how to employ them.

CHILDREN'S DISEASES.

J. T. writes: Why do contagious diseases strike when they do—that is, not in infancy?

REPLY.

The immunity conferred by the mother disappears by the end of the third month. Thereafter, susceptibility is high. A protection program should be begun in the first year of life. This includes vaccination against smallpox, diphtheria, whooping cough, tetanus, etc.

HERNIA REPAIR.

W. B. writes: How long does a man have to stay away from work after an operation for inguinal hernia?

REPLY.

It all depends upon the type of employment. For hard labor, two to three weeks in the hospital, with another week or two about the house, should insure firm healing. For a month thereafter, some caution will need to be exercised about heavy lifting.

AILING NAILS.

B. R. writes: The finger nails on my right hand have a smashed appearance — they are discolored and do not grow. What is wrong with them?

REPLY.

Probably an infection, possibly with a plant parasite [ringworm]. Psoriasis, as well as eczema, should be considered.

News of the Day.

Against a wall, perhaps?

Four Years in Retrospect.

The Netherlands information bureau has issued a gay little scarlet pamphlet that came this way yesterday. Its title is "Mein Kampf in Holland" or "Straight from the Horse's Mouth." The cover carries a handsome picture of a horse who bears a striking resemblance to Dr. Arthur Seyss-Inquart, reichscommissioner for the occupied Netherlands. The horse is in Nazi uniform with the Iron Cross over his heart and small swastikas spraying from his open mouth.

The preface states that the booklet is a confessio paupertatis, an admission of impotence. It says that the editors, after four years of describing the resistance of the Dutch to Nazi tyranny, have run out of adjectives. So, instead of trying to speak for themselves, they decided to let those be their spokesmen who have least interest in flattering them. The preface concludes:

"Ladies and gentlemen, it is our privilege to introduce to you the greatest living authority on the Dutch.

"We present: The Enemy!"

The booklet from preface on consists entirely of excerpts from mouthpieces of the Nazi mastermind during the four years Holland has been occupied. Some of these are charming little things. We quote a few, the first being a brief oration given on Jan. 27, 1942, by Radio Hilversum, Dutch radio station now under German control:

"In a well known village in the province of Utrecht lives a wonderful boy. A few months ago this good fellow wanted to volunteer for the Eastern front to fight the Bolsheviks. When the evil neighborhood heard about the intentions of this brave and idealistic young man, it lay in wait for him in the dark, beat him up, and left him half crippled. On this account the young man can no longer meet the physical requirements for the army. He must stay in bed and has been ill now for months. Maybe he'll never recover. It makes you cry when you read it."

"Unless there is an end to this practice of publishing a whole page of pictures of dogs on the main newspapers when Hitler meets Mussolini or Horthy, or when the German army has made sensational advances on the eastern front, severe action will be taken."

A third, from the same source, is vividly incensed against what it calls "romancing, in the worst sense of the word":

"It [romancing] began with Prince Bernhard carnations, orange colored leg bands for chickens, and similar exhibits. . . . Not to mention the most immoral utterances of mental degeneration in revolutionary times, such as the threat of assassination held out against National Socialist compatriots."

All in all, this is a delightful brochure, filled with hundreds of such excerpts. It concludes with a brief personality sketch of Adolf Hitler kindly supplied by Dr. Seyss-Inquart in a booklet published in October, 1940, for the conquered Dutch:

"The youngest and the oldest, everybody who knows Hitler, must love him. Youth loves Hitler above all. The smallest children open their hearts to him. The younger generation listens to his word. He is just as much at ease with the elegant artists and ladies of Berlin society as with the peasants and working women. The laborers love the socialistic Hitler. The men of science and art love Hitler. The soldiers are enthusiastic about the strategist Hitler. Hitler conquered with the strength of a clear conscience. He feels the weight of his responsibility. He is certain of the love of his people. Nevertheless he still knows how to smile kindly. Hitler hates war. He loves the peaceful mountains. He loves children, animals, and his home in the Alps."

And how he would love to be in it now!

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Writers should confine themselves to 200 or 300 words. Give full names and addresses. No manuscripts can be returned. Address Voice of the People, THE TRIBUNE.

HE'LL TRADE WITH THE STEEL WORKERS.

Lombard, Ill., July 21.—The assertions made by the CIO that "soldier's pay is higher than ours," in an editorial in THE TRIBUNE today, can only be answered in one way, that is, the words of G. I. Joe himself. So I am going to quote direct from letters written to me by my brother.

The steel workers certainly do not work such hours as these, written on Nov. 10, 1943: "Yesterday I got up at 3:30 a. m. for KP duty, worked on that until 8:30 a. m., got shipping orders, on duty until 7 p. m. Then back to guard at 10 p. m., called at midnite, on duty as guard . . . from 2 to 4 a. m. and up for day's work at 4:45 a. m. Average night's sleep three to four hours."

Neither do the steel workers take home such pay checks as he received in the months noted in the next letter, Dec. 5, 1943: "Had pay day Tuesday. Earned $20 for month of November. It's mostly spent already. In October I made $6.68 and in September $5.02. Naturally am broke perpetually. In fact May had to wire her folks for money recently. . . ."

May is his wife, and has tried to stay near him with their son, Johnny, whenever possible. To do so she had to get work, as told in the same letter: "May has a job as nurse's helper at the army hospital. . . . She likes her work, but says some of the cases are pitiful—soldiers with lost limbs, eyesight, etc. It's terrible and criminal the way some people ignore this war."

Finally, from his letter of April 10: "But truth is I would trade right now my army hardships for any civilian job you care to name! R. D. S.

IT SHOWS WHO'S BOSS.

Chicago, July 20.—The "unbossed" convention.

July 18, Franklin D. Roosevelt: "At the same time I do not wish to appear in any way as dictating to the convention."

July 19, Joseph Byrnes: "In deference to the wishes of the President I ask that my name not be placed before the convention as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Vice President."

July 19—[Associated Press story]: President Roosevelt was reported authoritatively to have listed Sen. Harry Truman of Missouri and Supreme court Justice W. O. Douglas as his second and third choices for the Vice Presidential nomination at the Democratic convention. REPUBLICAN.

DOUBLE TALK.

Chicago, June 20.—Mrs. Helen Gahagan Douglas seems to have mentioned double talk over and over again in her convention speech and Quentin Reynolds in his convention speech praised President Roosevelt's 1937 speech in Chicago, stating that the President at that time foresaw our eventual involvement in the coming war. Mayor Kelly also mentioned the President's foresight in his speech at the Democratic state convention.

Inasmuch as the President foresaw in 1937 our involvement in the war, doesn't the 1940 President's "again, and again, and again" your boys will not be sent to fight on foreign soil sound like double talk with a capital D? R. H.

WHY JAIL YOUR FRIENDS?

Evanston, Ill., July 20.—During his term of office it has universally been conceded that no previous American executive has ever had so much power in his hands as our present President. Again, again, and again he has preached idealism and spoken in angry tones about tyranny and exploitation, etc. Yet, tho a single word from him, nay, a single nod, could have destroyed the political machines in our great commonwealth with their racketeering, corruption, spoils system, and high taxes, this has never happened. On the contrary, he has allied himself to them during his entire reign, leaving millions of metropolitan residents at the mercy of this undemocratic monster. Now witness a similar alliance between them and the man who has been posing as a Bayard without fear and without reproach—Courtney. Can good and evil coöperate in any form of respectable government? JAMES BISSEL.

MAYBE HE IS RELUCTANT.

Chicago, July 18.—I feel that Mr. Roosevelt's statement that he is accepting the nomination "with reluctance" bears some sincerity. Who knows but that he, like Louis XV., has seen the trend of "things to come" or, as Louis expressed it, "After us the deluge." President Roosevelt has perhaps no desire to assume responsibility for the chaotic conditions that his regime has brought about and which inevitably will require adjustment.

No nation, any more than a private individual or corporation, can spend itself into solvency, and no resources, be they money, natural materials, or public confidence can last indefinitely.

Our President apparently is torn between an overwhelming desire to be the big man at the peace conference and the urge to get out of office now while the getting out is good; for it cannot be denied that the pay-off is not too far away. LORAINE NELSON.

WANTS TO END THE SUSPENSE.

Richmond, Va., July 17.—There is every indication that we are headed for dynastic rule in this country. Why not give it the green light and speed the day when it is an accomplished fact? This could be done by amending the Constitution of the United States, making the Presidential job a life-time one and fixing the line of succession without prejudice to any one in the female line.

You would be surprised to see how readily the people would take to an idea like that, if they were given the chance to voice their approval.

J. P. MADISON.

OVERCHARGED.

Chicago, July 18.—I hired a handyman to paint screens and repair a fence. After I paid him I discovered that he overcharged me but he refuses to make an adjustment. Is there any way I can force him to refund the excess charge? M. C.

There is no legal remedy for this. It seems probable that the amount in dispute is not enough to make court proceedings worthwhile.

Southern Belle Added to List of Debutantes

BY JUDITH CASS.

THE most recent addition to the debutante list is a pretty young southerner, Miss Marguerite Cox, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore F. Cox, of New Orleans, and granddaughter of Mrs. John Eager Lloyd of Hubbard Woods. Miss Cox and her mother and brother, Teddy, are here now with Mrs. Lloyd, and when Mrs. Cox, the former Mary Eager Lloyd, and her son return to New Orleans, Miss Cox will remain here to take part in the debutante festivities.

The debutante's father also is a former Winnetkan. Miss Cox, who attended Brenau college in Georgia, has started volunteer work for the British War Relief society thru Miss Margaret Bell, who is active in the Young America Wants to Help workshop where children make dolls and animals to be sent to England at Christmas time. Miss Cox will have a party later in the season.

Other Debut News.

All of the season's debutantes and 100 midshipmen from the naval training school at Northwestern university will be invited to a supper dance which Mr. and Mrs. Albert C. Beich of Glencoe will give on Aug. 12 at the Skokie Country club to introduce their daughter, Julie, to society. Miss Beich, who is continuing her flying at the Pal-waukee airport, expects to enter Pine Manor in the fall. She attended Ferry Hall and was graduated this spring from McMillan's Pine Crest school in Fort Lauderdale, Fla., the winter home of her parents. The bud's grandmother, Mrs. Paul F. Beich of Bloomington, Ill., has arrived to be here until after the party, at which she will receive with her daughter-in-law.

Dr. and Mrs. Robert Maynard Hutchins and their two younger daughters, Joanna Blessing and Clarissa, left yesterday for a six week holiday at Fishers Island off the coast of New London, Conn. They will be joined in the east by the eldest daughter of the family, Franja, who has been taking a summer course at Connecticut college preparatory to entering Bennington in the fall. She will continue her studies in dancing there. A recent graduate of Milton academy, Miss Hutchins is on this year's debut list, and if she decides to have a party it probably will be during the Christmas holidays.

When the James Norrises left for the east, they had no definite plans for a debut party for their younger daughter, Marguerite. The debutante, who was graduated this spring from the Ethel Walker school, will enter Smith college in the fall. Her brother, Bruce, is enrolled in the navy V-12 program at Yale university, close enough to his family's summer home on Long Island to spend his infrequent leaves there. Their sister, Eleanor, is living in Jacksonville, Fla., where her husband, Lt. Arthur R. Kneibler Jr., is stationed.

Whether Miss Margaret Rogers will be a debutante this year will remain undecided until after her family's return from Newport, R. I., on Sept. 1. Miss Rogers, who is called Penny, remained in the east after her graduation from Miss Wheeler's school, and her mother, Mrs. Arthur W. Rogers, traveled down to meet her with young Betsy and Johnny. Mr. Rogers hopes to join his family in August for a short holiday.

Here and There.

Members of the George Blossom family are scattered to the four corners of the country. The youngest member, Douglas, who recently was home on a two week leave, has returned to the naval air base at Corpus Christi, Tex., where he will take advanced flight training before receiving his commission in the navy air corps. Cadet Blossom's sister, Mrs. Dunham Reilly, and her young daughter, Sheila Ann, are visiting Lt. Comdr. Reilly in Norfolk, Va., where he is stationed temporarily.

The Blossoms' other daughter, Mrs. George Greeley Wells, and her son are making their home in Laguna Beach, Cal., with Lt. Wells, who is stationed near that city with the marine corps.

Lt. Norton Goodwin, who returned from abroad last winter after receiving nine citations for completing 50 missions, surprised his parents, Judge and Mrs. Clarence Norton Goodwin, over the week-end by flying in from Wright field, O., to join them for a few days. Judge and Mrs. Goodwin, who came to Chicago for the Democratic convention, will stay at the Deerpath Inn for two weeks before returning to Washington, D. C.

Mrs. Robert B. Lawson, the former Elsie Earle, is arriving today from Winston-Salem, N. C., for a visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. Edwin Earle of Evanston, having taken a few weeks off from her Red Cross, Y. W. C. A., and Junior league duties. While she is here her brother, Pvt. Samuel W. Earle, will come up for a week-end from Purdue university, where he is stationed with the marine detachment of the V-12 group. Later in the season the family will open its cottage at Castle Park, Mich.

Mrs. Bruce W. Strong has arrived from Ogden, Utah, with her daughter, Cara, to visit Cara's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Franklin M. Miller. Maj. Miller expects to join his family around Aug. 1 for his first leave in two years. He is stationed with the army air forces at Hill field, Ogden.

Mrs. Abner J. Stilwell is entertaining at cocktails from 4 to 6 p. m. today to announce plans for a benefit for the North Avenue Day Nursery.

Dear Diary BY BECKY

Women in War Work

By Dorothy Johnson

New applications for nurses' aids from Chicago area military and civilian hospitals cannot be accepted unless at least 600 more women take Red Cross training, Mrs. Arthur H. Spiegel, chairman of the volunteer nurses' aid corps, said Saturday. Aids already are on duty in 57 hospitals. Of the slightly more than 2,000, 1,435 are night time volunteers who are employed. The current need, Mrs. Spiegel said, is for daytime aids, most of them housewives.

Accelerated courses will open soon at Red Cross headquarters, 529 S. Wabash av., and at outlying branches of the organization. The classes will include 40 hours of lectures and demonstrations, and 45 hours of supervised practice in hospital wards, over a five week period.

Brig. Gen. Percy J. Carroll, commanding officer of Vaughan General hospital, Hines, requires the services of 50 nurses' aids for the hospital which soon will begin accepting army wounded for treatment and rehabilitation.

Women may register for nurses' aid training at central headquarters and suburban offices, the addresses of which may be obtained by calling Wabash 7850.

Lt. Col. Martha Jane Clement of Elizabethtown, Ill., has been appointed chief of army nurses in the 6th service command, relieving Lt. Col. Pearl C. Fisher, who will retire this month.

Col. Clement served in the South-West Pacific for 27 months, most of that time as director of nurses with headquarters in Brisbane, Australia. She returned to the United States in May, full of praise for nurses working in the Pacific theater who, she said, "have done an American job."

Members of the G. S. O. [Girls' Service organization] and service men guests will mark the third anniversary of the G. S. O. tomorrow night with a dance at the United Service Organizations' club, 21 N. Greenbay rd., Highland Park.

Organized in July, 1941, the Highland Park G. S. O., together with the Waukegan group, was the first such unit of the U. S. O. In October of the same year the name was adopted nationally for young women serving as junior hostesses at U. S. O. parties.

Mrs. Robert Walker and Mrs. David Levinson, original sponsors of the Highland Park group, will be special guests at tomorrow's "birthday party." Mrs. Theodore Osborn, chairman of women's work at the U. S. O. club, will also attend.

Miss Jane Cooley is president of the Highland Park G. S. O. Miss Donna Greene is secretary.

The Navy Mothers' Club of Chicago will have a picnic from 2 p. m. to 9:30 p. m. Wednesday east of the south pond in Lincoln park. Members will bring their families for a box lunch supper and community singing. Mrs. C. Ashley Deneen is president.

Word to Wise Girl: Don't Let Yourself Droop

BY MAUREEN DALY.

[Copyright: 1944: By The Chicago Tribune.]

The average honey chile, well groomed and well stacked, can make last year's sack and snood look out of this atmosphere, if she learns to wear her clothes with showmanship. Plenty of rest and exercise are necessary for an alert, healthy figure, and really to put the show on the road a girl must also be careful how she walks and what she eats.

on the SOLID side

A figure can look trim and neat only if it is kept "well arranged." Try using the models' method of walking with shoulders back and a book flat on your head; then try to "feel" that same erectness into your everyday posture.

Round shoulders will give you a "is she coming or going?" look and an all-over slouch will add the appearance appeal of a wilted wallflower. Don't droop because you feel too tall! Boys may not be your size now, but just straighten up and wait for them to catch up to you. And that nine hours a night duty sleep is important, for even the most classy chassis can lose its attractiveness if it has a sagging, tired of it all slump.

If your weight has hit a new ceiling, try exercising to round off the edges. A little miss muffet who does nothing except sit on her tuffet all day will never get thin! You can be careful about calories without going on a bananas and milk diet; just eat one out of every three of those chocolate sundaes that have become an afternoon habit, keep your eyes on the movie instead of nibbling candy bars during the double feature, and slow down on all "unnecessary" eating. A trim figure is worth all the self-control necessary to cut down those curves.

And don't get discouraged—after all, Judy Garland wasn't built in a day!

BY ALBERT GOLDBERG.

For nearly forty years the old globe has revolved to various sights and sounds since "The Merry Widow" first set the boys and girls to dancing the most insinuating waltz tune that had been thrown at their feet since Johann Strauss. It is still a good tune, and the others which surround it are by no means negligible, as a large and apparently pleased audience realized with a bit of surprise at the Civic Opera house last night, where the Messrs. Schubert revived what was described as the original adaptation for the English stage of Franz Lehar's durable operetta.

The description is doubtless intended to differentiate the present production from the wholesale revision which has been on view on New York the past season. What is "original" and what belongs to the confessed streamlining of Rowland Leigh and Randolph Carter must be left to the experts to determine. The texts of the songs seemingly have been untouched—though it made little difference considering the wholesale mouthing that went on among the cast—and one judges the sequence of numbers and the outlines of the plot have not been juggled with to any inordinate degree. There are the inevitable interpolations and topical allusions, as there have been in the previous efforts of the group this summer, but in general they clutter up the proceedings less than previously.

On the whole the production is the smoothest of the present series. The ladies of the chorus have been groomed to something approaching contemporary standards, and their earlier dowdiness has been discarded in favor of something that ladies of a Parisian embassy might conceivably affect. A few new gentlemen, not too obviously 4-F, have also been added to the ensemble with favorable results, tho the sheer vocal volume seems somewhat less than it was before.

Marguerite Piazza, relieved of the inanities of her "Rose Marie" role, proved to be a better actress than was earlier suspected—tho not so good a singer, Lehar unkindly having written a large part of Xenia's music in the weakest register of Miss Piazza's voice. Nor did Arthur Maxwell find too congenial employment for a robust voice, and there were times when his Prince Danilo suggested less of princely suavity than of a prankster on vacation from boarding school. The old reliables of the troupe—William Marel, Billy Kent, and Detmar Poppen—were much as before, expert in hokum and dependable to get laughs this way or that.

There was a dream ballet—to music of Strauss' "Acceleration" waltz—such as every contemporary of "Oklahoma" must have, and there was a Moravian ballet that implied that country must have been the home of every conventional ballet pattern. As for the manner in which the famous waltz was treated—that must wait for further report. "The Merry Widow" was not written to oblige a morning newspaper reporter in war time.

Four white collar girls were observed merrily skipping rope in front of the main Sears' plant during their lunch hour. The white collar men were on the sidelines, never fear! AL.

Commercial Photographer.

I thought the readers of the White Collar Girl column might be interested in the unusual story of Helene Ward's mastery of commercial photography in the last year and a half. She used to be a stenographer for a coal company, but when her husband, who is Nowell Ward, associate of the Royal Photographic society [and inventor of a color separation process] asked her to assist him on busy days, she displayed an unusual aptitude for picture taking. Nowell observed it and encouraged her to try to photograph on her own. Today she is an expert at architectural and interior photography and the Ward household enjoys friendly rivalry.

Marian Lindstrand, a secretary in the physics department of Illinois Institute of Technology, decided her education was incomplete and enrolled in a freshman course in physics. None of her classmates has objected—they're all men and Marion is a curly-headed blonde. . . . Vacationless white collar girls might write to the Y. W. C. A. office, 59 E. Monroe st., for schedule of summer outings called "The Lake Breeze." . . . A reader, E. R. For many moons I've been intending to mention an excellent booklet—convenient in size for purse or desk drawer—to be had for the asking. It is "Accepted Usage in Punctuation, Forms of Address, and Capitalization," published by Horder's. A postcard request to Horder's, Inc., 231 S. BY CLAUDIA CASSIDY.

Grand opera may be as standardized as baseball, as the editorial columns assure me, and as aptly reviewed in terms of hits, errors and assists—an altogether persuasive notion. But let me assure the editorial columns that they are standardized in one exact opposite when grand opera is staged outdoors. When a baseball game is threatened by rain, the winning team stalls in fond hope of thwarting any major outbreak by its fuming rivals. But when outdoor opera is menaced by lowering skies, it goes at such a clip morning newspaper reviewers are in imminent danger of breaking all precedent by seeing the last act.

Last night's "Il Trovatore" almost outran Fortune Gallo's streak of weather luck at Soldiers' field. It began in a drizzle, and without the major bulwark of its scenery, which had crashed and smashed in the wind. It proceeded, without pause for scenic change or even to let the singers take their usual quota of bows, as fast as George Schick's flying baton could urge it. And tho it was unorthodox opera, the 11,000 or more customers who stuck firmly thru the brewing storm got some highly believable Verdi.

The very nervous intensity of the pace suited this fierce tale of intrigue, revenge, and murder, and the stormy clouds jagged by lightning made a far better background than anything yet devised in the San Carlo scenic shop. So, while odd things happened, such as a baggage transfer waving from a gypsy tripod, capes whirling over singers' startled heads, a concert master protecting his violin by stretching a chamois under the strings, and an orchestra in which half the men played while the other half chased errant music—well, it wasn't a bad "Trovatore" at all.

Giovanni Martinelli was there to sing his famous Manrico, perhaps not the home run of earlier days, but still a matchless three bagger of heroic tenor, style and sheer exuberance. Margery Mayer sang beautifully as Azucena, using her big mezzo-soprano with exceptional effect. Mobley Lushanya was a charming Leonora, not in the grand style, but good in her own scale, while Stefan Ballarini sang the Count of Luna in an effective lyric baritone, and Harold Kravitt gave his usual authority of voice and manner to Ferrando.

"VOICE IN THE WIND."
A United Artists picture, directed by Arthur Ripley, featuring Francis Lederer and Sigrid Gurie, and presented at the World Playhouse.

By Mae Tinée

Good Morning!

"Voice in the Wind" is as depressing as the drip, drip, drip of a faucet in a deserted country house at midnight in the dark of the moon.

Well acted it is—no argument there; but, in these times of stress and heartache, time, talent, and money put to the job of inflicting torture on people seeking entertainment and relaxation, seem poorly spent to me.

The horrible experiences which befall Jan Volney, famous Czech pianist who dares to defy an edict and plays a beloved patriotic symphony at a concert in Prague, shortly after the Nazi invasion, are depicted in gruesome detail. Escaping the barbaric cruelty of his captors, Volney, his brain befogged by brutality, manages to elude the concentration camp whither he was bound, landing eventually on the isle of Guadalupe, a haven from which refugees endeavored to secure passage to the United States. . . . Here, unknown to the unhappy man, lies his Marya, dying of a broken heart. . . . Here live the evil brothers, Angelo, Luigi, and Marco, who accept money from refugees, take them out to sea, presumably toward waiting steamers, and drown them. . . . Here are various other sad souls in various stages of despair and sin.

The action rolls turbidly along to a finale in which death plays the rescuer to two unhappy souls.

Well—some call it art.

See you tomorrow.

Amy H., Madison, Wis.—To keep apples, peaches, or pears for canning from turning black after paring them, dip them in the following solution: 1 tablespoon vinegar, 1 tablespoon salt, and 2 quarts of water. My mother always used this solution at canning time for those fruits.

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., July 23.—Sam Wood has made a honey of a deal with Warners. He gets Humphrey Bogart for his "Jubal Troop." Sam can get started making the picture as soon as he decides who will play the woman. Don't be surprised if Claudette Colbert does it. It's an outdoor yarn with a homey domestic idea along with it. . . . Helen Gahagan's friends, after listening to her address the Democrats in Chicago, wired, "Come home, but we'll never forgive you." . . . Johnny Mack Brown, in discussing women who've gone into politics, said, "Women should do mighty well in congress with their knack of introducing bills in the house." . . . Leo McCarey may go to the South Pacific with Bing Crosby and finish his next story for Bing over there, and I may go along. Boy! Would that be a trip! . . . Phil Terry, on his second wedding anniversary, heard that Charles Brackett and William Wilder want him for the good brother in "The Lost Week-End."

Day After of a Film Opening.

Afterthoughts of some higher ups about "Since You Went Away": A famous star: "It was poverty row's idea of 'Gone With the Wind'" . . . writer-producer quipped, "I didn't think the war had been quite that long" . . . another star: "I don't want to be made to cry . . ." Still another, "It was an emotional shower bath, but sometimes the water was turned off." . . . Seems a mite strange that Robert Walker, who starred in "See Here, Private Hargrove," should write, "'Since You Went Away' is the finest motion picture in which I have ever appeared." How come? He's a Metro star, isn't he? . . . Frieda Inescort has been added to the New York cast headed by Martha Scott for "Soldier's Wife." . . . Minna Gombell, after playing meanies for years, went goodie in "Sight Life" for Universal. [I don't mean "gooey."] . . . Jimmy McHugh is proud over the success of little June Allyson. He predicted she'd be a star. Dick Powell also shares Jimmy's enthusiasm.

Enough to Make a Bey Bay.

Turhan Bey's name gets some funny spelling. A magazine story had him "Turban" Bey. A local theater spelled it Turham Bey! Notice how that ham sticks out. . . . Charles Coburn wants to sing "I Want to Get Lit Up When the Lights Go Up in London." I know how you feel, Charlie—they won't let me sing, either. . . . In Warners dubbing department for French versions, the producer is Swiss, director Russian, and narrator Belgian. No English is spoken there. . . . Russell Birdwell's old black shirt looked right sexy on Jane Russell in her pinup pictures. But that shirt's doing double duty, having been draped on the body of his new find, Toni Seven. On her it looks cute, too. . . . Van Johnson had the girls at a beauty salon in a panic the other day when he waited an hour for his friend, Mrs. Keenan Wynn. . . . Some one remarked to Cary Grant that Warners were about to release "Arsenic and Old Lace," made three years ago. Cary said, "Is that so? Who's in it?"

Don't Cry, Baby.

Arthur Walsh, of "Two Girls and a Sailor," believes there's a jinx against him; he sprained his ankle, was thrown from a horse, and lost his identification bracelet all in the same day. Then came home and learned he got a straight dramatic role in "Autumn Fever" with Mary Astor and Philip Dorn. . . . Fred Waring returns to the air waves in September. He has a yen to make another picture. You can expect an announcement about it soon. . . . It's old, but Jimmy Dorsey repeats, "It's horse sense that keeps them from betting on people." . . . "Marriage for Single People" opens in Cambridge, Mass., Aug. 21, with Jeanne Cagney in the starring role.

It Could Be in Hollywood.

Hurd Hatfield, Dorian Gray of that picture, entertained his father, Judge William Hatfield of New York. It was the judge's first visit here. The judge asked what happened to his son at the end of the picture. Hurd replied, "I'm found dead on the floor at the foot of my own portrait." "Then what happens?" asked his father. "Then I hope to live happily ever after in Hollywood." . . . Lynn Fontanne and Alfred Lunt are planning a production of "The Guardsman" over in London. Katharine Cornell and Brian Aherne are about to go over to do "The Barretts of Wimpole Street." They are all dying to play in Moscow, and have been promised they'll be the first American companies to play Paris when it's occupied by the allies. . . . Lila Lee, long absent from our town, is playing the mother role in "Kiss and Tell" on the road.

'One Is Missing' . . . . . By H. Vernor Dixon

(Copyright: 1944: By H. Vernor Dixon.)

SYNOPSIS: Capt. Jim Reed and his companion, Bart, find Hugh Westcott St. John wandering in the Malayan jungle. St. John takes them to a smashed airplane where they meet Tom Riddell and Richard Cary, pilots, Scott Banning, his wife, Ellen, and Mae Nolan. Jed is unsympathetic and curious as to how they shall die. He tells them there is no escape as they are surrounded by Japanese. Jed's life has been spent in the South Seas, and his fighting was done behind the lines, blowing up bridges, roads, storage, and munitions dumps. Banning, an American financier, manufactures airplanes, some used by the Japanese. Riddell is his chief test pilot. They were searching for a small island in the gulf where they were to be met by a French submarine. Bart tells Mae that Jed became a killing machine by the circumstance of war. Realizing that Jed is doing a good job, fighting for others, Mae pleads with the feminine Ellen not to interfere with his work, and is accused of jealousy. St. John sketches the Japanese patrol boat base which Jed believes they can blow up. If Bart can get thru to the submarine, then Jed and St. John will blow up the base and escape in one of the Japanese patrol boats. Bart and St. John appeal to Mae to make Jed place some value on his life. Jed is surprised when told Mae is deeply in love with him.

INSTALMENT XXV.

FINAL PREPARATIONS.

Jed just wanted to dump everything in the Malayan's cart, but the Englishman placed all of the equipment in the order in which it would be taken out.

"One minor hitch," he said, shortly after noon, "will wreck the whole plan. A second's delay, a miss in timing— "

"Sure," Jed interrupted, "whatever you say. You're the doctor on this job."

They were standing in the edge of the jungle, just beyond the schooner. Omar was busy about the small cart, oiling the squeaks out of the two wooden wheels and smearing grease on the teakwood axle.

St. John nodded toward him and said. "I'd hate to be a Jap when that man goes amok. All I hope is that he holds himself in tonight until our job is done."

"He will. Notice the way he caresses that load of dynamite? He knows what he can do with it."

Jed walked to the cart and stuffed in a small sack of grenades. "Just for luck," he said. Everything was in except the batteries. Jed made a last inspection. "Guess we're all set. Might as well go aboard and have something to eat."

They pulled aside the thorn barrier, made their way down the deck of the schooner and then dropped below. Tom Riddell was in the galley, opening a can of sardines. There were dark circles under his eyes and he seemed exceptionally nervous.

They stepped into the main salon and paused. Scott Banning was pacing the length of the floor, his hands clasped behind his back, his eyes burning and his thick jaws clamped solidly together.

Jed knew what Banning was thinking. If the sub should possibly make it thru to the cove, Banning would have the upper hand. He would definitely not want an American captain of infantry aboard that sub, nor would its commander and crew. He and St. John, if they managed to return to the cove would, in all probability, be shot down in cold blood.

He turned away from Banning. Mae and Ellen were watching him and their expressions were tight and strained. Ellen forced a smile when he looked at her and took courage from his coolness. She sat on the starboard bunk, her legs tucked under her, leaning back against some cushions. She made a lovely picture and she knew it. Jed smiled.

He turned his attention to Mae Nolan. She, like Riddell, seemed exceptionally nervous. She was sitting very stiffly on the edge of the couch, biting at her lower lip and drumming her long, tapering fingers on the table.

Jed looked from one to the other, then casually asked, "Do you two happen to have bathing suits? You might have to swim for it tonight. It's a possibility." They shook their heads and he said, "Well, then I guess you can get along the way you are."

Ellen said, "I'll do without that, even, if I have to swim."

Mae got to her feet and started for the galley, saying, "I'll fix something to eat."

St. John stepped into the room and stretched out on the couch. He clasped his hands behind his head and said, "I hope Bart made it to the sub. A fine bloke, that man."

Jed turned and found Ellen's eyes upon him. Her gaze slid away and her soft lips twisted in a tiny smile. Jed chuckled to himself. Perhaps Riddell was not the fool he seemed after all.

The hours dragged on. After luncheon every one sat about engrossed in their own thoughts. The atmosphere was tense, highly strained. There was nothing to do now but wait for the night. A late afternoon rain, like a cloudburst, cleared the air for a moment and then the damp heat returned.

Ellen twice changed to other clothes, but Mae Nolan had only the single outfit. She finally borrowed some striped pajamas from Riddell, stripped in the aft stateroom, and dressed in the pajamas. She pulled her auburn hair up in a knot at the back of her head and held it in place with a green silk scarf. When she returned to the main salon, Jed smiled at her.

She padded to the phonograph and put on the record of Summertime.

Ellen cried, "Not that again! Not now. Have you no sense of the fitness of things?"

"What do you want me to play, a funeral march?" She bit at her lip and glanced at Jed. "I didn't mean that." She carefully placed the needle on the record and the sad strains of the music filled the room.

The darkness of the tropical night suddenly descended upon the cove and Jed got to his feet and stretched. He scratched a match and lit the lamp hanging over the table. He blinked in the sudden light. St. John, who had been asleep, sat up on the couch and yawned. Riddell came in from the galley, mutely asking a question. Banning, slumped in a canvas chair, straightened, and pressed his lips tightly together. Omar swung himself down from the deck above and patiently waited in the doorway.

Jed nodded to St. John. "We'd better get going. It will take time, dragging that cart to the base."

St. John swung his feet to the floor and again yawned.

Jed beckoned to Omar and made his way aft. No one moved while he was gone. When he returned he and Omar were carrying two large batteries. They passed thru the room and went above and their footsteps were heard going down the deck. In a few moments they were back.

Jed said, "Millions of stars, but no moon tonight. It's perfect."

Every one watched him. Only St. John was smiling. Jed looked at Riddell. He studied him for some time, then said, "At the north tip of the cove I've placed a triangular arrangement of three flashlights. They point out to sea. You go out there about 2 a. m. and wait. Maybe a little before would be better."

Riddell nodded. "Okay. Then what?"

"Well, if we succeed in blowing up the base you'll hear the explosions down here. If you don't hear them it will mean we failed and the sub won't be able to get thru even—even if Bart did make it. But if you do hear the dynamiting then everything's okay. Turn the lights on at 3:30 sharp. Of course, make sure the coast is clear before turning them on."

"Sure. I'll take care of it."

Jed smiled. "Okay. But take a rifle and watch your step." Then he turned and faced the others.

Scott Banning's eyes bored into his and he asked, "What if you don't come back, captain?"

Jed replied, "I was just thinking of that. It's possible." He had meant to say probable, but changed his mind. He said, "If we don't show up you'll have to count on the submarine. They'll put off a rubber boat to pick you up."

Ellen moved near to him and asked, "And suppose the submarine, too, doesn't show up?"

"In that case," he said, "I would touch a match to the dynamite locker—and stay aboard."

"Aren't you being too brutally frank? We know what the situation is as well as you do."

Vacation Togs, Still Plentiful, Get a Big Play

BY REA SEEGER.

Vacation clothes are getting a big play these last few weeks of sunshine and summer weather. Whether you stay around home or go to the country, you probably will assemble all the sun fashions you can. These include denims, cottons, and chintz; denims for sturdy, down-to-earth exercise in country or at home with a war garden, and cottons for leisure hours. Denim slacks and overalls come in full length and in more casual models sliced off at the knees. Skirts with the wrap around formation and front buttoned panel are teamed with shirts, blouses, and bras.

Sun tanning is the pride of hundreds and is the principal diversion on almost every vacation. It's easy with cotton pinafores, open front and back, a skirt with matching bra of striped or flowered chintz, or swim and beach clothes.

Beach and swim clothes are at the peak of assortment, sizes, and colors. Most of the sea-going suits boast little if any elasticized fabric, but that omission is more than offset by the gayety of printed cotton. Terry cloth robes also are anything but plentiful, but the strong colored cotton crash robe-coats are grand alternatives because of the vivid shades and the good looking texture of the crash.

Thru the Looking Glass

If ever there was a cosmetic that we would fight to see listed as "essential" it would be the cream created—and perfected—as camouflage for the woman who is disfigured by a birthmark. We don't think anything can equal its importance to feminine morale, not even the lipstick.

Using this cream has changed the course of many a woman's life. Developed by a woman who herself was disfigured by a flaming birthmark, it has made some interesting human history. It's an opaque mixture, tinted to natural skin tones, that conceals flat birthmarks perfectly, no matter how intense their shade of stain. There is a technique to its application, but it's one easily mastered, and results are a camouflage that defies detection. We know and have talked with dozens of women who use it daily; their birthmarks, as a social and psychological handicap, have simply ceased to exist for them.

The cream is so well known and now so widely known by women and girls to whom nature was unkind that we don't need to remind them of its existence. However, we would like to point out, as a bit of summer news, that it is now available in waterproof form. This should interest women other than those who have birthmarks on face and neck. It means that if you have a mark concealed by ordinary clothing, perhaps on the back, leg, or arm, you need no longer be wary of the brief bathing suit. The cream, in any one of a number of tints that will blend with your natural skin tone, is as effective for your particular purpose as it is for those with facial disfigurements. All those with birthmarks, or any defect of pigmentation that stains the skin anywhere, can comfortably go in swimming if they use this cream.

HOUSE UNIT ASKS STUDY OF PUBLIC WORKS PLANS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 23.—The special house committee on post-war economic policy and planning has asked the federal works agency to make a nation-wide survey of contemplated public works construction, Rep. Colmer [D., Miss.] chairman of the committee, announced today.

Colmer said governors, county executives, and mayors of cities with more than 10,000 population will be asked:

1. The dollar volume of the projects on which final plans have been made for post-war construction on which construction could be started on short notice.

2. Projects on which final plans are being prepared.

3. Projects on which preliminary plans have been completed or are in process.

4. Projects contemplated as desirable but on which no plans other than preliminary estimates have been made.

The report also will show what funds or reserves have been set aside for financing post-war public works, Colmer said.

There's an old lament always heard at this fresh fruit pie season: "What can I do to keep the juice from overflowing in my oven?"

There are several helps. First of all, the pastry should be pressed together well at the edges. A paper funnel may be inserted into the vent in the top of the pie. Make one of fairly stiff white paper. The juice will boil up into the funnel instead of out of the pie. There are gadgets that you can buy to serve this purpose. One is a little pottery bird with open beak [a blackbird to bake in your pie]. The juice boils up into the birdie which sits square in the middle of your pie.

If the pie isn't too full of filling and if the oven isn't too hot, there shouldn't be much of a boil-over problem. After the crust has browned and baked thru at 400-425 degrees, it is important to reduce the heat at once to 350 degrees, at which temperature a filling shouldn't boil violently.

Now's the time to eat corn on the cob. Remember, the season's a short one! Cut any leftover corn from the cob, scrape the cob to get all of the good juice, and heat the cut vegetable in butter or cream. Or, if you haven't enough to serve as a vegetable, fold the corn into plain pancake batter and serve pancakes and sirup as a luncheon dish.

Summer squash and okra are numbered among the vegetables which add variety to meals these days. If the squash is young and tender, cut it up for cooking with the skin on. Only an old summer squash needs paring, and if it's an old one, you wouldn't want it anyway!

Okra is so mucilaginous that many persons do not care for it as a vegetable by itself. It is wonderful cooked with tomatoes, tho. And with tomatoes plus bean sprouts [your own sprouted soybeans, perhaps], okra really proves itself a delightful vegetable.

Baked Okra.

1 medium onion, chopped
2 tablespoons fat
Salt, pepper
1 tablespoon minced parsley
1 cup well seasoned tomato sauce.

Wash okra thoroly, cut off stems and slice. Brown onion lightly in hot fat. Add okra and cook for 3 minutes. Turn into a baking dish, season, add tomato sauce, sprinkle with parsley, and bake 30 minutes at 350 degrees.

According to Culbertson

[Copyright: 1944: By Ely Culbertson.]

Duplicate players often marvel that on a certain board one declarer has managed to take two or three tricks more than the rest of the field. Well, here is one sound explanation:

South, dealer.
East-West, vulnerable.

NORTH
♠ K Q 10 5
♥ A 4 3
♦ 8 3 2
♣ K 7 3

WEST
♥ K J 9 7
♦ Q 6
♣ Q J 10 9 4

EAST
♥ Q 10 8
♦ 10 7 5 4

SOUTH
♠ A J 9 8 4
♥ 6 5 2
♦ A K J 9

At all eight tables South became declarer at a four spade contract, usually via the simple bidding: one spade by South, three spades by North, four spades by South.

In every case West opened the club queen and East captured the king. The club return was ruffed, the outstanding trumps were drawn in two leads, and seven declarers then finessed against the queen of diamonds. Sometimes this proved fatal to the contract; in other cases 10 tricks still were made because these particular South players then took another finesse against the diamond 10 instead of trying to drop that card in straight leads.

The eighth declarer, Ilke the others, saw that if the diamond queen lay exactly twice guarded in East's hand [he already had played the ace and the 10 had not appeared], it would be easy to run the entire suit, discarding a heart from dummy, but he further saw that this precise position of diamonds was extremely unlikely. Therefore, he decided to use a safety play for the contract itself. He continued with the diamond king after the ace, intending, if the queen did not fall, to enter dummy and lead toward the jack. He was rewarded lavishly when the queen fell from West, since he then could enter dummy, finesse freely for the diamond 10, and discard a heart from dummy without giving up a diamond trick.

Laugh-Invoking Games Hit at Child's Party

[Copyright: 1944: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

As I may have told you before, I am collecting notes and ideas with the intention of writing a party booklet for mothers who read these articles. So when I am asked by parents for party plans, I can give only general suggestions. Today I want to add to those that appeared in a recent column.

In saying, as I did, that parties should be planned, I meant especially the games, for of course the refreshments have to be prepared ahead of time. But there is one important thing I did not mention. Children, especially the older boys and girls, usually feel that they've had a good time if they've laughed a lot. So balance your games. That is, besides having some games that are quiet or interesting, putting children on their toes mentally, be sure to plan some that will provide hilarity and which, if the youngsters don't all know one another, will break the ice. For instance, if you have planned several pencil and paper games, be sure to have nonsensical ones, and ones, too, in which the youngsters move about. Sitting still too long is deadly at any kind of party, I believe.

A word about refreshments. For the very little ones whose eating routine is so strict, it is best to make the party meal of such a character that it takes the place of a light supper. This is better than just ice cream and cake, which will spoil supper appetites. Besides, sweets in an empty stomach plus excitement often are upsetting. Have your ice cream and simple cake or cookies, but let them follow a real supper dish, preferably a hot one.

A party for any age does not require elaborate refreshments to be successful. Simple foods, provided they are delicious, well chosen, and bountiful, always make more of a hit. Perhaps you've noticed that the complicated dishes with a "fancy" appearance frequently do not taste nearly as good as the less effortful ones which "hit the spot."

In the same way I think party table decorations can be gay and effective without being elaborate and so difficult to accomplish that they make entertaining a laborious or expensive chore to the mother or the young hostess. Nowadays most parents are familiar with the kitchen party sort of eating, in which the young persons do their own cooking and perhaps eat in the kitchen too.

POST-WAR AIR RULE AT ISSUE IN CAB HEARING

Free World Competition May Be Decided.

BY FRANK STURDY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 23.—The civil aeronautics board's first action involving post-war international air routes starts tomorrow with the opening of hearings on the application of American Airlines to purchase stock control of American Export Airlines, at present the only competitor of Pan-American Airways in scheduled commercial transoceanic flights.

Rarely has any CAB hearing aroused such interest in the aviation industry, because, while the question is not raised directly, the proposed contract between the two air lines bears on the issue whether there shall be free competition between United States air transport system in the intercontinental field when the war ends.

No Definite Lines.

A single company, with domestic lines participating in operations in some measure, is advocated by Pan-American. This is the so-called "chosen instrument" policy. Ranged against Pan-American are 16 domestic transport lines who want regulated competition in the world wide business of the sort now governing commercial flights in the United States. United Air Lines, alone among the domestic operators, has sided with Pan-American.

The government eventually must decide between the alternatives, but so far no definite line has been established despite the conferences with the British and the Russians in which the United States has been represented by the A. A. Berle committee. Much depends upon political and diplomatic arrangements with foreign nations, commonly given to government subsidies and monopolies, for an exchange of landing and passenger carrying privileges.

Whole World Covered.

Applications have been filed by virtually all domestic lines for international routes, either transoceanic or to Latin America, covering every spot on the globe and all intermediate points where cargo or passengers might be profitably carried.

Since its first route was established in 1927 over the 90 mile course between Key West and Havana, Pan-American has been extended thruout the world. It is still operating passenger, mail, and express service in 47 countries, over routes of some 82,000 of the 98,582 miles covered at the time of the Pearl Harbor attack.

Would Have Early Wedge.

Pan-American's only transoceanic competition from an American company is from American Export in the Atlantic. Both fly North Atlantic routes from New York to Foynes, Ireland, and from New York to coastal bases in South America and across the south Atlantic to Africa.

Should the CAB approve American Airlines' plan to buy American Export, the domestic company would have a subsidiary thru which to enter an early wedge in the post-war field.

Export Air Lines has applications pending for a great circle route from Chicago to Newfoundland and England, Paris, Rome, Athens, Cairo, Basra, Karachi, and Bombay, and from Athens to Istanbul, Bucharest, and Sevastopol. It has also applied for routes from New York to Puerto Rico, Trinidad, Belem, Natal, and Ascension Island to South Africa, and from Natal to Dakar, Bathurst, Casablanca, Algiers and Rome.

Subsidiary of Ship Firm.

Formed in 1937 as a subsidiary of American Export Lines, a steamship company, Export Airlines at the time the European war started had completed extensive survey flights to Europe, Asia and Africa, and had applied to the CAB for routes to France, Italy, and England. These had to be dropped.

The CAB, however, ordered the steamship company to relinquish its ownership of Export Airlines by Oct. 25, 1944. The hearings starting tomorrow will pass upon the plan of compliance.

PLAN NEW FIELDS

Washington, D. C., July 23—(AP).—William A. M. Burden, assistant secretary of commerce, said today the civil aeronautics administration soon will recommend to congress a billion dollar post-war program for building 3,000 new airports, all except 100 to be small fields largely intended for private flying.

The nation has 3,086 airports, Burden said in an address prepared for radio broadcast, and the CAA will propose improvements for 1,625 of these.

Calling attention to pending legislation for funds to assist states in an airport program, Burden urged all communities to examine their aviation future, saying that it "is distinctly not a job which can be done by Washington alone."

Two Major Categories.

He said the CAA program divides airport needs into five technical classifications based on size of runways and other features, but in general there are two major categories, the small fields, or "airparks" for personal flying and local air service, and larger air terminals.

The program calls for 1,827 cities with airports deemed adequate for commercial air operations ranging from charter and local or feeder lines to transcontinental express service, Burden said. At present 286 cities have been certified as airline stops to meet safety and efficiency standards.

Sample Plans Described.

Burden said the construction program for the 1,827 cities will cost an estimated 630 million dollars and will serve an additional 5,000 nearby communities.

He cited sample programs for two states to illustrate what the CAA report will show. The Massachusetts plan, costing 30 million dollars, will add 36 new airports to 54 fields there and improve 10 others. The CAA has an $11,700,000 program for Minnesota which would add 114 airports to 45 there and improve 36 others.

STEAL ADDING MACHINE.

Burglars stole a $175 adding machine from his office at 223 N. Des Plaines st., Harry C. Caplan told police Saturday.

THE native shrewdness of wild birds, even those hatched by artificial means, was demonstrated by 20 wild ducklings released on the ponds of the Wheaton farm last week.

The birds were six week old wood ducks that had been hatched in a turkey incubator at the Illinois natural history survey station in Havana. Frank Bellrose Jr. and Harold C. Hanson, survey technicians, inspected the farm ponds and agreed that they provided a natural habitat for wood ducks, because the area is surrounded with open timber on two sides and thick woodlots on the other shores.

Twenty Ducklings Released

Fourteen female and six male ducklings were released on the ponds and immediately showed that their artificial life in a dry land incubator had not altered their instinct for self preservation.

Tho none of the ducklings ever had touched water, they immediately stuck their bills under the surface and started swimming quietly away in the manner of wounded birds. They were using the old trick of many wild birds and mammals—that of pretending to be injured or dead in order to attract no attention to themselves.

Newcomers Find Refuge.

Instead of flapping and splashing all over the pond, as we might expect from excited newcomers, the ducklings escaped across the pond to a quiet area with hardly a ripple in their wake.

Bellrose and Hanson, in addition to delivering the 20 ducklings, also brought four wood duck nesting houses that will be erected on the oak trees near the farm ponds next spring. Banding records prove that this species has a remarkable homing instinct, and tho the 20 birds will migrate south this fall, we expect that they will return to the ponds to nest next spring.

Bands to Tell Story.

Survey banding records show that wood duck hens have migrated from the Illinois river to the Louisiana swamps and then returned to nest within 10 yards of their home of the previous spring. All of the 20 ducklings were banded before being released, and attempts will be made to retrap them on the farm pond next spring to see how many return. This can be done by rechecking the numbers on the metal leg bands.

The Illinois natural history survey believes that the state's wood duck population may be increased by starting new colonies on suitable lake and stream habitats, and the stocking of the farm ponds is one of the first attempts in this direction.

★ The GARDEN ★

THE European corn borer seems to be causing undue panic among gardeners, many of whom believe that borer attacks can result in complete ruination of their sweet corn. As a matter of fact, corn borers rarely attack a planting in sufficient number to destroy the yield, altho they can reduce plant strength and thus reduce ear production. Entomologists believe that each single boring reduces plant strength by about 1½ per cent, therefore if a gardener has an average of 10 borings in each plant his total yield of corn will be reduced by 15 per cent.

Application of rotenone insecticides on advanced plantings helps to control corn borers. The farm gardener is using a commercial insecticide that contains rotenone, spraying it into the tassels and leaf joints of the tallest plantings every five days. Rotenone, either in liquid or dust form, is the only effective insecticide for use against borers.

The second brood of borers probably will appear in the first two weeks of August, but this hatch is likely to move into field corn rather than sweet corn.

HULL'S DEFENSE OF 'PANTY WAIST BRIGADE' RIPPED

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 23.—Asserting that "them was weasel words, Mr. Secretary, and not very bright," Mrs. Eleanor Patterson, publisher of the Washington Times-Herald, tonight resumed her controversy with Secretary of State Hull over her allegation that the "panty waist brigade" of the department's younger men is dodging war service.

Mrs. Patterson precipitated the controversy when she recently published the pictures and ages of 20 of the department's younger men under the heading "Some State Department Boys Do Not Choose to Fight." Hull described the statement as grossly unfair.

'Pale Handed Laddies.'

"It was not very bright of you to hand out that queasy statement at your press conference of July 14," Mrs. Patterson said on the editorial page of her paper. "You might have known that given time—and it has taken quite a bit of time—we would get the real facts and figures on how many of your pale handed laddies are now in actual combat and how many are not.

"We don't mean how many of your boys under 38 of the foreign service and also of the state department proper are in soft jobs behind the lines, in the intelligence corps, the OWI, strategic services, liaison officers on commissions, staffs, brief case toters or whatnots."

Mrs. Patterson said that regardless of how distracted Hull has been while playing his "great game" of international politics he should know the answers to how many of his boys are carrying arms in the face of the enemy and how many of "our future statesmen—pre-Pearl Harbor warmongers every one of them—are now in there killing and wounding as many Germans and Japanese as they can."

Parents Want to Know.

"Every father and mother of a boy in actual combat, every wounded boy returned from combat—and the ghosts of our dead soldiers, maybe—would like to know," she said.

Reviewing the record of 1943, the editorial asserted that in January that year there were 2,100 American men in the state department, of whom 816 were permanent foreign service career officers. The remainder were auxiliary officers hired for the duration and six months—clerks, messengers, guards, janitors, and the like. Citing testimony given March 29, 1943, before the house committee on military affairs, the paper asserted that 574 foreign service men between the ages of 18 and 37 had registered for the draft and charged that the state department obtained draft deferments for everyone.

The editorial said Hull told reporters July 14 that 301 men from the foreign service are already in military service and 109 are awaiting induction and asserted:

"But he did not divulge that only 34 of the 410 are from the permanent career men. The rest are the auxiliaries, clerks, messengers, guards, couriers, janitors, dispatch agents, and such.

"Nor did he point out that the 34 foreign service officers in military service or 'awaiting induction' make just 10.8 per cent of the 316 such officers of military age in the foreign service division of the state department as compared with the 45.5 per cent of the men of military age thruout the nation already in uniform and at war."

CHURCH TOWER ALL THAT'S LEFT OF BURIED TOWN

MEXICO CITY, July 23 (AP).—Ezequiel Ordonez, a geologist who reported that he had just made a hazardous trip thru the lava covered region of Paricutin, denied reports today that the village of Zirosta, five miles from the volcano, was destroyed. Ordonez said he had been able to make his way on foot quite close to Parangaricutiro and Zirosto, taking advantage of stretches which emerged from the sea of lava. At times, he said, he had run to avoid being encircled by the molten rock.

At Parangaricutiro, he said, he found the front wall and one of the towers of the lofty church still standing. No other ruins emerged above the lava.

SCHROEDER SAYS DEMOCRATS BAR VOTING BY NEGRO

Werner Schroeder, Republican national committeeman for Illinois, said his telephone was ringing all day yesterday after he had discussed one part of the Democratic platform on the radio earlier in the day, as part of the Reviewing Stand program on W-G-N. His callers, he said, were mostly Negro voters from Chicago's south side who agreed with what he had said.

In his discussion of the platform adopted last week by the Democrats during their national convention, Schroeder said:

"The Democratic promise to 'racial and religious minorities' that they would be able to 'vote equally' comes with ill grace from the New Deal. For 80 years the 15th amendment has been flagrantly violated in states dominated by the Democrats. For almost 12 years the New Deal has had supreme power but has never used it to force its own party members to grant equal voting rights.

"Mrs. Roosevelt resigned from the D. A. R. because it would not permit Marion Anderson to sing in its hall; it would have been more to the point if she had resigned from the Democratic party until it gave the Negro the right to vote in the south.

"The 15th amendment has been obeyed in those states in which the Republicans have had power."

NICHOLSON HITS 4 HOMERS; CUBS, SOX SPLIT

NORTH SIDERS TOP GIANTS, 7-4, AND FALL, 12-10

14 Pitchers Work in Second Game.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 23.—Bill Nicholson's bat powered the Cubs to one success today by producing a three homer parade in the front half of a double header with the Giants, and altho the muscle man made another nonstop trip, his 21st of the year, in the second game, it failed to bring the same results. The Cubs folded in this one, 12 to 10, despite a seemingly imposing five run lead after compiling their 7 to 4 victory.

Nicholson's feats in the first game saw him cross the plate four times, as well as driving in four runs on his three homers, two of which were against Bill Voiselle. But even this vast expenditure of energy might have meant nothing if Hy Vandenberg hadn't happened along at the right moment as a rescuer for Bill Chipman. The rescuer stifled a sixth inning threat with a double play, and went on to nail down Chipman's ninth decision.

Second Game Indescribable.

The second affair was one of those things classed as indescribable. The Cubs, after sluffing off their five run lead that had been built up partly by a three run homer by Ival Goodman, who filled in when Dom Dallessandro pulled a charley horse, got back into a tie without producing even one hit in a three run eighth.

Each team employed no fewer than seven pitchers; the Cubs put into employment Ed Hanyzewski, who, after a two months' rest, suffered a reinjured right elbow, and the last of the Cubs' seven was Japhet Lynn, who was assaulted for the decisive runs in the eighth.

Several Records Broken.

While today's double header generated one of the wildest sessions of the year, it figured in breaking and tying several major league records. Nicholson's four home runs tied a major league record and his feat in hitting six home runs in the last four games equaled another mark held by four other players. The Cubs and the Giants in using seven pitchers in the second game tied a record, but their combined total of 14 tops the previous high of 12 used by the Cubs and Cincinnati Reds in an 18 inning game in 1942. In all 36 players were used, 20 by the Cubs.

While Nicholson was driving in seven runs and scoring six with his six hits today, he moved into a tie with Mel Ott in the home run department, each having 21. Nicholson at the same time took over the runs-batted-in leadership of both leagues with 64.

The Cubs could muster only one hit off Voiselle in the first three innings of the opening game, but the lone tap was good enough to cook up a run. It happened in the second on a pass to Nicholson and Johnson's single. Nothing was heard again from the Cubs until Nicholson hammered his No. 18 homer into right field stands in the fourth, but this gave Ott an idea so he duplicated the act with his 21st in the home half.

Giants Tie Score in 5th.

Two singles with a helpful wild pitch let the Giants tie it at two apiece in the fifth, but it didn't take the Cubs long to do a good untying job after the first two fellows had been retired in the sixth. Hughes walked, stole second, and Cavarretta singled him across. Then Nicholson let go with No. 19, giving the Cubs a 5 to 2 edge.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

BY ARCH WARD.

THE five day racing program conducted by Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., July 3 to July 7 at Washington Park cleared $400,800.04, the largest sum ever raised for charity from a sports event of that duration. . . . Every track in the Chicago area pitched in enthusiastically to make the meeting a success. . . . The management of Arlington Park-Washington Park kept overhead to a minimum. . . . The president of Arlington Park, John D. Allen, added $700 to the fund, which represented money paid to Brinks Express company for service during the week. . . . Only one organization declined to enter into the spirit of the enterprise. . . . That was the American Totalisator company, which offered to contribute $2,000 to the cause. . . . This department turned back the donation and the following letter to Harry L. Straus of the Totalisator company in Baltimore explains why: "Mr. Benjamin F. Lindheimer, executive director of the Arlington Park Jockey club, has informed me that Mr. Oscar Levy of your organization stated that you desired to make a contribution of $2,000 to the five day charity program that we all attempted to make a great financial success, as well as a credit to American racing. Our controler, who audited the charity operations, advised me that the gross operating profit of your company was $26,662.38. He further informed me that $1,721.64 of this amount represented a profit to you because of the fact that the Illinois racing board permitted us to run an extra race on July 3 and July 4. Your contribution, therefore, amounts to only $278.36, said sum being the difference between the $2,000 you offered, less the additional profit of $1,721,64 which you enjoyed by reason of the extra races. Consequently, I have decided not to accept your donation, because it is not in keeping with the spirit of those who made the Charity week so successful and is not consistent with the charity promotions of this newspaper which always have been all-out efforts to build American sports."

When the White Sox beat the Red Sox on July 19, that left the Cubs the only team nursing a zero in major league interclub competition. . . . The Cubs will not have a chance to end their dubious distinction until they meet the Cardinals on Aug. 23. . . . Bill Daley, former Minnesota-Michigan gridiron star, is at Fort Pierce, Fla., with the amphibious forces. . . . According to Jimmy Dykes, Joe Kuhel is the only first baseman in the American league who uses a legal mitt. . . . And, from what we hear, that makes the American league one up on the National. . . . Victor Borge, Empire room headliner, is taking golf lessons from Tom Walsh of Westgate Valley. . . . Morris Arnovich, one time batting champion of the National league, is in New Guinea. . . . Stand up and cheer department: Dan Scism, sports editor of the Evansville, Ind., Courier, recently won his city's golf championship for the second straight year.

The crew of a bomber about to embark
On its very last mission, I've read,
Had saved up a goodly sum of cash
For the celebration ahead;
When this mission had been accomplished,
It would mean they had reached their mark,
And who could begrudge those gallant lads
Their plans for a spot of a lark?

But just on the eve of this mission
The boys got together to "fan,"
And a somber note stole into their talk
As they quietly made their plan;
They left the money and a note
With a party they called "The Boss."
Saying, "Chum, if it happens we don't come back,
Just give this to the Red Cross."

From that line of battle array,
But this last unselfish act of their lives—
Isn't that some sort of Thought for the Day?

MINNESOTA AND KENTUCKY JOIN ALL-STAR ROLL

Send Guard, Tackle to Face Bears.

All-Star Roster

THE list of college football players who have accepted invitations to join the All-Stars for the game Aug. 30 in Dyche stadium against the Chicago Bears follows:

END—Abe Croft, Southern Methodist...
TACKLE—Clyde Johnson, Kentucky.
GUARDS—Frank Gaziano, Holy Cross; Bob Graiziger, Minnesota.
CENTERS—John Tavener, Indiana; Vic Lindskog, Stanford; Meredith Cushing, Cornell.
BACKS—Ralph Park and Pete Layden, Texas; Gene Fekete, Ohio State; Billy Reinhard, California; Glenn Dobbs, Tulsa.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

The All-Star line, which will play in front of such backs as Glenn Dobbs, Gene Fekete, and Pete Layden, takes more concise form today with the acceptance of invitations by Clyde Johnson of Kentucky and Bob Graiziger of Minnesota to face the Chicago Bears, professional football champions, in Dyche stadium Aug. 30.

Johnson, a 260 pound tackle who is 6 feet 6 inches tall, and Graiziger, 201 pound guard, will make bids for starting assignments in the 11th annual All-Star game sponsored by the Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., when the collegians report at Northwestern university Aug. 12. Graiziger is a former marine while Johnson is a lieutenant in the infantry and is stationed at Fort Benning, Ga.

He's a Former Marine.

Graiziger was graduated from Washington High school, St. Paul, Minn., and then entered the state university where he now has received a degree in physical education. After winning a varsity letter at guard in 1943, he was transferred to Northwestern university as a V-12 marine student. Before the start of the football season last fall he received an honorable discharge and immediately returned to Minnesota, where he earned another football award last year.

Despite his 5 feet 9 inches and 201 pounds, Graiziger is exceptionally fast and obviously the type to be an effective blocking guard. He is versatile in athletics and has received three Minnesota hockey letters and one in baseball. He captained the former squad.

Bob is 22 years of age and is employed this summer at a boys' camp near International Falls, Minn.

He'll be Hard to Move.

Johnson's home is in Ashland, Ky., the Ohio river city which has sent so many fine athletes to the state university. For three years he was the Wildcat's regular left tackle and he sparked the line which carried Kentucky's eleven to its best record in recent campaigns. In particular, Lt. Johnson recalls the Alabama game that year as his greatest thrill in sports.

Johnson, who is 26, has received the degree of bachelor of arts in education from his alma mater. There can be no doubt his power will be a great help to the All-Stars when they face the Bears.

Frank Pavlecek, Sparta forward, suffered a compound fracture of his right leg in a collision with Necaxa's Manuel Gayton late in the first period as the Spartas introduced night soccer in Chicago by defeating Necaxa, 5 to 1, last night in Sparta stadium. Jimmy Wolf scored two Sparta goals, and others were tallied by Frank Keberle, Undino Marchori and Jerry Bohm. Henry Bellagambi scored for Necaxa in the first period.

Salt Lake City, Utah, July 23 (AP).—Harold [Jug] McSpaden of Philadelphia broke the Fort Douglas course record today by two strokes to win the $2,500 Utah Open tournament with a 271 for 72 holes. To his 136 for Friday's and yesterday's rounds, he added a par-shattering 63 on the morning round and a par-72 for the windup. Byron Nelson of Toledo, O., had 132—72—69 for 273 and second place.

FIELD OF 109 TO VIE FOR CROWNS IN TRIBUNE SWIM

Fifty-seven boys and girls from Chicagoland qualified at California park and Whealan pool yesterday in the 100 yard free style swimming races sponsored by The Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc. They completed the field of 109 which will compete for the 10 championships in the 15th annual meet next Sunday at California park. Others qualified Saturday at Cermak pool and Sherman park.

Medinah club girls, defending team champions, qualified eight yesterday at California park. Bellfuss natatorium, with Jean Gerhard, 1943 class A champion, qualifying in the 13 and 14 year old division, had a total of eight at the same pool but two are in the boys' competition.

Kenosha Qualifies Eight.

Kenosha, Wis., Youth Foundation, competing at both centers, will send eight swimmers into the finals. Dorothy Schwartz won the class C girls' race at California park. The other finalists are boys and they probably will challenge the Great Lakes Naval Training center, 1943 team champions, for the silver trophy.

$50,000 Added Race to Have 17 Starters

BY MAURICE SHEVLIN.

The Calumet farm's aces, Twilight Tear and Pensive, will not want for competition next Saturday when Arlington Park puts on its 16th running of the $50,000 added Arlington handicap at Washington Park.

Far from it, for the mile and a quarter fixture, whose roster of winners is studded with such brilliant names as Sun Beau, Discovery, Equipoise, and others of lasting fame, has drawn 15 others besides Warren Wright's great filly and colt.

1943 Winner Nominated.

The nominees include Coward and Dupuy's Marriage, winner of the handicap last year; Allen Drumheller's Georgie Drum, which captured this year's Stars and Stripes handicap; Tola Rose, Old Kentuck, Princequillo, Ended, Valdina Foe, War Knight, Challenge Me, The Finest, Daily Trouble, Equifox, Bushwhacker, Salto, and Maejames.

Wednesday's third running of the $15,000 Cleopatra handicap at a mile for 3 year old fillies has drawn 11 entries. Included is Louis B. Mayer's Whirlabout, one of the best juvenile developments of 1943 under the colors of Arthur B. Hancock and still a formidable member of her division when Twilight Tear is not around.

Small Field, But Fast.

A small but fast field is entered in the one mile handicap which features today's ladies' day program. Included are Howard Wells' Equifox, 118; Mill B. stable's Ended, 109; B. H. Wise's Bushwhacker, 107, and Ethel Hill's War Knight, 115.

Don Ameche's Sir Bim, second to Free for All in the Arlington futurity, is entered with 17 other juveniles in today's third race which is for maidens.

JUNIOR GOLFERS TO BEGIN CLOSED TOURNEY TODAY

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Chicago golf enters another congested week of activity today, with the opening of the Chicago District Golf association's annual junior closed meet at Hinsdale and the pro-presidents' tournament, conducted by the Illinois section of the P. G. A. with their club presidents, at Oak Park.

The junior meet is restricted to junior members or sons of members of C. D. G. A. clubs. If the field is large enough, President Larry Rutherford of the association and Don Heinly of Hinsdale plan to conduct today's medal play test so that 64 boys will qualify for match play, as was the case in the junior open last week at Medinah. Match play will then continue thru Thursday's championship battle.

Forbes, Coyle Are Standouts.

40 Teams Compete.

A field of approximately 40 teams, one of the largest in the history of the pro-presidents' tourney, is expected at Oak Park. The championship will be decided on selective drives, alternate shots, and half handicaps. The Illinois P. G. A. will present the winning president with a permanent trophy, while his professional partner will receive a medal.

YANKEES BEAT DYKES' TEAM, 7-6; LOSE, 10-6

31,000 Crowd Buys $721,000 in Bonds.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The White Sox let repeated opportunities slip from their grasp in the first game of their double header with the Yankees in Comiskey park yesterday afternoon, and lost, 7 to 6, when a rally died with the tying run on second in the ninth. But it was different in the second game, to the apparent delight of the 31,100 paying spectators. The Sox slashed thru to a 10 to 6 victory.

The crowd, largest of the season on the south side, bought $721,000 in war bonds during solicitations before and between the games by such old time Sox stars at Nick Altrock, Joe Benz, Red Faber, Ray Schalk, Johnny Mostil, Doug McWeeny and others.

Sox Rise to Sixth Place.

The split double header, in addition to lifting the Sox to sixth place, gave them a record of nine victories against only four defeats in this season's competition with the champions. The teams will play the fifth and final game of the current series tonight with Buck Ross being pitted against Ernie Bonham.

We believe the second game makes better consumption for Chicago readers than the first. But let's be chronological. Here's the bad news first:

The Yankees won mostly because of a five run Bill Dietrich blowup in the third inning. What proved to be the winning run, however, was a homer by Johnny Lindell off Jake Wade in the eighth inning. Emerson Roser was the winning pitcher, tho he gave way to Hank Borowy in the eighth. The White Sox scored one run off Borowy in the eighth and two in the ninth.

Yanks Chase Dietrich.

The Sox started out as the best on making a million runs in the first inning. Wally Moses, Le Roy Schalk, and Eddie Carnett singled. Walks to Ralph Hodgin and Hal Trosky forced in Moses and Schalk. Thurman Tucker took three strikes and Mike Tresh hit into a double play.

The Yankees scored five runs in the third, Dietrich fleeing for cover. Bud Metheny singled and Trosky fumbled Herschel Martin's grounder. Lindell bunted and Metheny was forced at third, but Nick Etten slashed a single to right, Martin scoring. Rollie Hemsley put on the squeeze play, Lindell scoring the tying run. Oscar Grimes' single and Mike Milosevich's double were good for three more runs. Dietrich walked Roser and that was all for William. Wade went in and stopped the rally.

The Sox made their third run in the third on Carnett's triple and Trosky's single. Metheny opened the sixth by bunting a single over Wade's head and later scored on Etten's double. With one out in the eighth, Lindell drove the ball into the upper deck of the left field stand.

Sox Work Up Two Rallies.

Hodgin walked at the start of the eighth and Trosky's single put him on third. Borowy replaced Roser and walked Tucker. Guy Curtright batted for Mike Tresh and tapped into a double play, Hodgin scoring. Then Jim Webb whiffed.

Johnny Dickshot led off in the ninth with a pinch single and Moses walked. After Schalk and Carnett were retired, Hodgin doubled to left, scoring Dickshot and Moses. Trosky grounded to George Stirnweiss to end the game.

Sox Open 24 Game with Rush.

The Sox also loaded the bases with none out in the first inning of the second game. Schalk walked, Dickshot singled to center, and Carnett beat out a bunt. Hodgin then whiffed. Curtright rolled a double play ball to Milosevich, but Stirnweiss failed to touch second after taking Milosevich's toss. The result was a run home and the bases were still loaded. Trosky and Tom Turner struck out.

Orval Grove, who stayed in the game long enough to be the winner, seemed to go into some sort of flash coma after Lindell had been retired in the second inning. He walked Etten, cast one wild pitch which enabled Nick to get to third, then whizzed another wild pitch to the screen to let Etten walk home with the tying run.

Sox Chase Page.

CARDINALS TAKE 2 FROM BRAVES, 3 TO 2 AND 5 TO 2

Boston, Mass., July 23 (AP).—Mort Cooper scored his 12th victory of the season today as the league leading St. Louis Cardinals defeated the Boston Braves, 5 to 2, after winning earlier, 3 to 2.

Nate Andrews, Braves' first game pitcher, lost as St. Louis scored three runs on three Boston errors. The Braves were leading, 2 to 1, going into the ninth inning when the Cards scored two runs, the last coming in when First Baseman Macon let Ryan's throw go thru his hands.

FAMILY PARCEL SALES PLANNED FOR U.S. LAND

Surplus Disposal Policy Outlined.

Washington, D. C., July 23 (AP).—The government will follow a policy of selling its surplus real estate in family size parcels and to farm purchasers who will cultivate the land themselves, W. L. Clayton, surplus war property administrator, announced today.

The statement replied in part to criticism of the surplus farm land disposal program by James G. Patton, president of the National Farmers union.

Opposes Realtor Domination.

Patton in a statement two weeks ago opposed assignment of the sales job to the Reconstruction Finance corporation, predicting domination of the disposal program by the National Association of Real Estate Boards and further control of agriculture by big interests.

The government has acquired large acreages of lands for war purposes which it will not need when hostilities end. Clayton, in an outline of general policies to be followed by the RFC on real estate other than industrial property, set forth these additional objectives:

To sell as promptly as possible at current values without undue disruption of the market;

Former Owner Has First Call.

To sell outright, reserving the right of government recapture only if national defense requires;

To give former owners an opportunity to repurchase their land at current market values;

And to avoid sales to speculators or persons planning to combine small tracts into large ones for speculative purposes.

Clayton said all land would be appraised by "experienced and disinterested men" usually drawn from the local community. "Agricultural and other rural land may be replotted into economic units," he said, but it is not planned that city or suburban land would ordinarily be so treated. He said that wherever it is held advisable that land be subdivided to bring about a satisfactory disposal, the subdivision will be done without regard to the size of the original tract.

GROUP TO RULE JOB RECRUITING SYSTEM NAMED

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 23.—The names of the eight men who will have the responsibility of recommending whether recruitment of workers shall be extended beyond local areas, to a field as wide as necessary under the job priority referral system, were announced today by War Man Power Commission Chairman McNutt. They represent the principal government agencies interested in the referral system.

Charles M. Hay, deputy chairman and executive director of WMC, is chairman of the new national man power priorities committee. The other members are: John N. Ohly, war department; Capt. Paul H. Rice, navy department; Dan Ring, maritime commission; T. P. Wright, aircraft resources control office; Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, selective service system; J. H. Weiss, United States civil service commission, and Clinton S. Golden, WPB.

McNutt explained that whenever it becomes apparent that workers wanted by a war industry whose product is essential to the war cannot be found locally or within the region, their recruitment will become an inter-regional effort.

G. E. to Manufacture Jet Propulsion Plane Turbine

Schenectady, N. Y., July 23 (AP).—Jet propulsion aircraft turbines for the war department will go into production at General Electric company's second largest war plant, the company announced today. G. E. is converting 600,000 square feet of floor space, built two years ago to make war equipment no longer required. The company also has turned over jet propulsion drawings and specifications prepared by its engineers to another corporation formerly engaged in making airplane engines.

Money Parley Delegates Set Out for Homes

Bretton Woods, N. H., July 23 (AP).—Delegates to the allied nations monetary conference departed today taking with them the accomplishments of three weeks' work in the form of plans for an international monetary fund and a world bank for reconstruction and development.

The agreements reached here will be presented to the legislative bodies of the 44 participating nations for approval with the hope they will be ratified by the time the war ends.

Russian Switch a Surprise.

Biggest surprise of the conference was last night's announcement by Treasury Secretary Morgenthau that Russia had agreed to take a quota in the world bank of 1.2 billion dollars, instead of the 900 millions finally assigned her after a long battle by the United States delegation to get Russia to accept the higher figure.

The soviet increase in its quota brings the initial capital of the bank to 9.1 billions, against 8.8 billions previously set. Of this total the United States will put up 3 billion 175 millions.

There was no explanation as to why Russia delayed its announcement on the bank quota until the 11th hour, but one informed source suggested it was done on psychological grounds.

Put in Bad Light.

The Russians were understood to believe they had been put in a bad light by their insistent demand for a larger quota in the monetary fund, and that a similar impression had been given by their stand on the bank question.

In this connection it was reliably reported that the soviet delegation cabled Moscow yesterday recommending the larger quota for the bank as a means of showing Russia's intention of coöperating in post-war economic problems.

An informed official said the answer actually was received while the final dinner was in progress, and that there had been no attempt to withhold the announcement until the right moment arrived.

EASTERN PLANE MAKERS RETURN MILLIONS TO U. S.

New York, July 23 (AP).—The aircraft war production council, east coast, said today its member manufacturers had returned more than 100 million dollars to the government in 1942 and 1943.

Much of the money was in voluntary rebates and the remainder was turned back as a result of renegotiation, the announcement said.

The group said the main reasons manufacturers were able to reduce output costs on war planes and allied equipment were increased production efficiency and improved economies of operation.

Many contracts, originally negotiated on a fixed fee basis, have been changed to a fixed price basis as manufacturing experience has permitted more accurate determination of actual production costs, the council added.

People and Events

Lewis W. King has been elected regional vice president of American Airlines and will have charge of traffic and route development in nine midwest states and western sections of Pennsylvania and Virginia.

C. C. Lockwood has been named advertising business manager of Chrysler sales division of Chrysler corporation and will direct business details of the advertising department.

Chief Radioman Joseph L. Bowen, for 16 years a navy man, will speak tonight at a labor-management war production drive committee dinner at the south works of Carnegie-Illinois Steel corporation, United States Steel subsidiary. Fifty war workers, whose suggestions have helped speed production of steel, will attend.

PUT TAX SAVINGS INTO NOTES TO MEET BOND GOAL, CLARKE URGES

Individuals with cash balances reserved for payment of income taxes were appealed to last night to purchase series C tax notes before the fifth war loan drive ends July 31.

Philip R. Clarke, chairman of the Chicago and Cook county drive, said full investment of tax balances in the notes would enable Cook county to reach its individual subscription quota of 277 million dollars.

Clarke emphasized that tax notes purchased this month may be used for payment of the third quarter tax instalment due Sept. 15.

Cook county did not reach its quota for individual subscriptions in any of the earlier war loan drives. Actual subscriptions received up to last Friday were 215 million dollars or 77½ per cent of the 277 million dollar quota. It is estimated that subscriptions for securities other than tax notes will bring the total up to 250 million dollars by July 31. The last minute drive for sale of notes is to make up the remaining 27 million of the quota.

WPB Pressed to Get Enough Steel for War

Cleveland, O., July 23 (AP).—Instead of being able to allot substantial steel tonnage to civilian production the war production board is pressed to obtain sufficient steel for war needs, the magazine Steel said today.

So that urgently needed materials may be obtained first, WPB is revising its apportionment, the publication said. Shell container allocations are reported cut 60 per cent, involving probably more than 100,000 tons of hot and cold rolled sheets and affecting some allotments as much as 90 per cent, Steel said.

The large shell program is getting under way, the periodical said, and in August about 160,000 tons of semi-finished steel will be provided for this purpose. The quota will increase until October, when more than 300,000 tons monthly will be provided.

"Sheet and plate deliveries are further extended and range from December to January, with some bookings beyond," it was said. "Bar deliveries are falling behind, tho not as badly as flat rolled steel. Part of this is due to diversion of semi-finished steel to the shell program."

Steel making operations last week rose a half point to 97 per cent of capacity. Chicago advanced 2½ points to 101 per cent; Cleveland, 1 to 92, and New England, 1 to 90. Pittsburgh declined a half point to 90 per cent; Youngstown, 1 to 95; Detroit, 2 to 83, and Wheeling, 2 to 100. Unchanged rates were Cincinnati, 86; eastern Pennsylvania, 95; Birmingham, 95.

CIO Strike Closes Steel Rolling Mill in Kentucky

Ashland, Ky., July 23 (AP).—A strike by CIO United Steelworkers in protest of an alleged revision of working schedules affecting several employes has forced suspension of operations at the American Rolling Mills company's Ashland plant. Picket lines today turned back all persons attempting to enter other than maintenance men holding union cards. Supervisors and foremen were among those refused admittance. The plant produces sheet steel used exclusively in war production.

END CORPORATE INCOME TAXES, RUML ADVISES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 23.—The National Planning association today released a report recommending a balanced budget when employment and production reach a certain high level, elimination of federal income taxes on corporations, and related fiscal and monetary proposals designed to maintain high employment under private enterprise.

The report was made by Beardsley Ruml, treasurer of R. H. Macy & Co., and H. Christian Sonne, president of Amsinck, Sonne, & Co., both of New York. Their recommendations are for use by the business, agricultural and labor committees on national policy of the planning association, a private organization established in 1934.

Advocates Debt Retirement.

On the matter of the budget, the report accepted the existence of budget deficits in time of unemployment, but advocated public debt retirement in periods of overexpansion of private business activity.

It recommended a balanced budget at some agreed upon level of high employment and production. For purposes of discussion, Ruml and Sonne took the employment of 55 million persons at 40 hours a week, producing about 140 billion dollars of money income payments to individuals at 1943 prices. They suggested the amortization of the national debt when this level is exceeded, but not before.

The report recommended the abolition of corporation income taxes, asserting that "management, whether industrial, commercial, or agricultural, in general should be permitted to conduct its business affairs free of federal income tax considerations."

Say It Would Raise Wages.

Abolition of this tax would tend to lower prices, increase wages, eliminate double taxation, and do away with "the distortion by tax considerations of business judgment," the authors said. They suggested a franchise tax of 5 per cent on corporations to represent the "value of doing business in corporate form."

The principal sources of federal income, they said, should be a graduated progressive individual income tax, ranging from 16 per cent on net income under $3,000 to a ceiling of 50 per cent on all net income of $250,000 or more. They opposed a sales tax, saying it tends to be deflationary and harmful in periods of low consumer spending.

ARMY APPEALS FOR BOOST IN TRUCK OUTPUT

Washington, D. C., July 23 (AP).—Heavy trucks are as militarily important as B-29 bombers and heavy artillery, the war department said today in appealing to workers and employers in the truck industry to increase production.

"Eighty thousand vehicles urgently required will be missing at the most crucial stage of our conflict unless production is stepped up," said Lt. Gen. Somervell.

Representatives of the foundry and truck industry told the war department that the man power shortage is one of their most serious problems. Approximately 4,500 men placed in certain foundries would solve the shortage, they said.

UNDER 2 PENSION PLANS.

Formerly I worked for a paper mill and paid social security taxes from January, 1937 until August, 1942. At that time I entered railroad employment, to which the railroad retirement act applies. I have been told that under these circumstances the social security taxes I paid are refundable to me. Is this true? H. K.

Answer: There is no provision for a refund of social security taxes. The taxes you have already paid will stand to your credit on the books of the social security board. If you again take a job in covered employment, this credit would provide a basis on which you could build up enough wage credits to qualify for monthly benefits on reaching 65.

These payments would be in addition to any benefits to which you might be entitled under the separate railroad retirement system.

The social security credits may be built up even after 65 by working in covered employment. The minimum social security wage record required for either retirement or survivor benefits is that the insured person shall have earned $50 or more in each of at least half of the quarterly calendar periods intervening between Jan. 1, 1937, and his retirement or death. In any case there must be at least six quarters of coverage.

After a person has worked for 40 quarterly periods, he cannot be disqualified by subsequent unemployment or by change to a job not covered by the social security program.

BARES NEW DEAL UNITS' ROW OVER FOOD CONTROLS

Farm Paper Discloses OPA and WFA Strife.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 23.—The controversy that broke into the open last week between the war food administration and the office of price administration when WFA summarily ordered most cuts of beef made ration free is only the first round in a fight for control on the food front, the Washington Farm Reporter, publication sponsored by the National Grange, and several farm leaders, said today.

The WFA order originally directed OPA to lift rationing from all beef except choice and good cuts on Aug. 1, but OPA says the directive has been modified to postpone the effective date to Aug. 15. The order was issued while both Marvin Jones, WFA chief, and Chester Bowles, OPA administrator, were out of the city.

Backstairs Battle Waging.

"For many months, those in the know have been aware of the backstairs battle going on between WFA and OPA over who was to have ultimate control on the food front," the Reporter said. "The order issued last week by Food Chief Jones brought this struggle into the open. Chester Bowles, rajah of OPA, had to take it and like it. He was in no position to 'beef' as Jones has him behind the power of the executive directive setting up the war foods administration. And Jones softened his punch a little by permitting OPA to put hams and pork loins back on a ration point basis.

Expect More Fights.

"Observers here believe there will be more rounds fought in the WFA-OPA fued before the final winner is determined. Bowles is a former public relations expert in the million dollar bracket, and after the magnificent six months whitewash job he has done for the price control tribe, there are few who believe he will throw in the sponge at this point."

Willow Springs Unveils Monument to 78-in War

A monument to 78 Willow Springs residents now in the army and navy was unveiled yesterday at Willow Sprihgs rd. and Archer av. in the suburb. The monument, a block of red granite, bears the names of 76 men and two women. Willow Springs American Legion post 832 aided in the unveiling ceremony. The monument was accepted on behalf of the village by Mayor John J. Rust.

NUTS AND JOLTS By Bill Holman

That trap door I installed saves a lot of trouble. You know how women forget things at the last minute.

PREDICTS DROP IN SUPPLY OF TOP BEEF CUTS

Civilians will experience increasing difficulty in getting choice grades of beef in retail markets because 30 per cent fewer cattle have gone to feed lots this year and more than one-third of the two top grades of beef produced under federal inspection now is going to the army and navy, the American Meat institute, Chicago, said yesterday. The packers' trade association also emphasized that the "ever-growing" black market is diverting thousands of high grade cattle from legitimate channels.

"The situation as to the top grades of beef," the institute reported, "threatens to get worse. It is reasonable to presume that military needs are not getting smaller, and since the proportion of better grades of cattle coming to market in the months ahead will be smaller, the percentage for the army and navy may have to be increased."

The institute added, however, that record numbers of cattle are on ranges and farms and unusually heavy marketings are predicted, to provide good, nutritious food.

One Hurt and 25 Jolted When Trolley Hits Switch

Joseph Posa, 56, of 849 Arthington st., was cut on the right arm yesterday when thrown against a front platform window of an Ashland av. street car that was stopped abruptly after it struck an open switch at Fulton st. Twenty-five other passengers were jolted by the quick stop.

LT. W. B. GEMMILL TO WED NIECE OF SEN. BROOKS

John B. East, Republican committeeman of the 5th ward, announced yesterday that on Tuesday or Wednesday there will be a "real Republican wedding" in his ward at St. Paul's Episcopal church, 50th st. and Dorchester av.

The principals are Miss Anne Brooks, niece of Sen. Brooks, and Lt. William B. Gemmill Jr., army air force, son of Maj. William B. Gemmill, who in private life was a master in chancery and practicing lawyer in Chicago. The father also was president of the 5th ward Republican club and East said the office is being held for him in his absence.

Maj. Gemmill, the son of the late Judge W. B. Gemmill, lived at 5435 Hyde Park blvd. until he rejoined the army for this war. He was a captain in World War I.

"The date is indefinite because it depends on Lt. Gemmill getting leave," East explained. "Miss Brooks lives in Washington, D. C. She and the bridegroom's parents will come here togethter for ceremony in the church of which Maj. Gemmill is a vestryman."

Hungarians to Denounce Campaign Against Jews

Action of the Hungarian Quisling government in handing over hundreds of thousands of Jews to the Gestapo for destruction will be denounced at a massmeeting Wednesday night in the Dr. Herzl Community house, 1325 N. California av. Chicago residents of Hungarian extraction will attend.

STASSEN TELLS PACIFIC STRIDES, SHUNS POLITICS

Comdr. Harold E. Stassen, former governor of Minnesota, declined yesterday to discuss politics as long as he is a naval officer, but promised to speak out after the war. He arrived at Chicago airport from San Francisco, Cal., after more than a year in the Pacific war zone, and boarded another plane for Minneapolis, Minn., where he will have a brief visit with his wife and two children before going to Washington, D. C.

Comdr. Stassen, who was promoted to that rank just three days ago, is assistant chief of staff and flag secretary to Adm. William F. Halsey, commander of the 3d fleet. He resigned as governor of Minnesota in April, 1943, four months after starting his third term, to enter the navy.

Silent on G. O. P. Politics.

He refused to comment on the fact that earlier this year he was prominently mentioned as a possible Republican candidate for President, and had said he would accept the nomination, altho he was not actively seeking it.

On the war, Comdr. Stassen had more to report. He asserted that the progress of the Pacific fighting is "extremely favorable." He had special praise for the men who took part in the victorious Saipan campaign, and disclosed that he had been with a fleet unit in that area. The present battle for Guam is proceeding successfully, he said.

Overoptimism Is Decried.

Cautioning that "the war won't be won until the last shot is fired," Comdr. Stassen warned against overoptimism that the war will soon be over. He said that men, weapons, and supplies have been arriving in the Pacific theater in such volume, increasing daily, that the United States has built up a powerful offensive, but that the vast differences work against an early and easy victory over the Japanese.

He said recent internal shakeups in Japan and Germany indicate weakness, but that it is too early to tell their effects on the war.

Comdr. Stassen will be in Washington only a few days before reporting back for duty.

Sgt. Hoy, Colonel's Son, Is Given Up for Dead

Thomas H. Hoy, 4152 Washington blvd., was notified by the war department yesterday that his grandson, Sgt. James F. Hoy, 20, who had been reported missing Jan. 11 after a raid over Germany, has been officially deemed dead. Sgt. Hoy, a gunner on a bomber, was the son of Col. T. A. Hoy, an army officer stationed in England. A twin brother, Lt. Thomas H. Hoy II, is also in the army.

"These are beautiful dishes and silverware our relatives gave us! But I wish one of them had thought of a little hot plate cooker!"

DROP IN SALVAGE OF TIN CANS LAID TO SCAVENGERS

Private scavenger firms were accused of disregarding requests for more effective coöperation in collecting tin cans for salvage yesterday by John G. Sheldon, executive secretary of the war production board in the Chicago metropolitan area. Sheldon reported that Chicago has been lagging in tin can salvage since the first of the year. Collections in the first six months of this year were more than 1,200 tons under the amount collected in the same period last year. He said the reduction resulted largely from "lack of coöperation and apparent neglect" by private scavenger companies.

$200 SPOTLIGHTS FOR BABY CHICK EXHIBIT STOLEN

The thieves who looted an automobile in a parking lot at Superior st. and Wabash av. condemned an exhibit of baby chicks in the Stevens hotel to obscurity.

Included among the loot was $200 worth of spotlights for an exhibit of baby chicks at the convention this week of the International Baby Chick association.

The spotlights were owned by Harvey C. Wood of Newton, N. J., a service representative for the Limestone Products Corporation of America.

COMPOSER PASINI IS DEAD.

BEG YOUR PARDON

In a story published in the July 17 issue of THE TRIBUNE relating the capture of William Pisano, 25, it was incorrectly stated that Pisano surrendered after he had emerged from the home of Miss Jean Zajac at 725 N. Throop st. The erroneous information was supplied by the City News bureau, which yesterday issued a correction stating that Pisano had not been in the building in which Miss Zajac resides, but had emerged from a passageway between the two buildings at 731 and 733 N. Throop st. According to Pisano's statement to police, he had encountered Miss Zajac the day preceding his capture and had talked to her concerning the neighborhood.

SOLDIER'S WIFE RAPED IN HOME AS BABY SLEEPS

The young wife of a soldier serving overseas was beaten and raped early yesterday in her two story home on 96th st. by an assailant who entered thru a basement window.

The woman's 11 month old baby was asleep in an adjoining room. She told Lt. Hugo Olsen of the police sex bureau that she screamed and tried to fight off the intruder, but that he slugged her.

The victim, a statistician, was taken to South Chicago hospital in an hysterical condition. She later said her assailant was about 30 years old, 6 feet tall, had a dark complexion, and wore a white shirt and dark trousers. The mother and baby were alone in the house.

The Inquiring Camera Girl

BY MARYON ZYLSTRA.

[The Tribune will pay $5 for each interesting question submitted by a reader and used by the Tribune. Today's question was submitted by Clarice Hillstrand, Bremerton, Wash.]

THE QUESTION: What compliment from your husband thrills you most?
WHERE ASKED: Drake hotel.
THE ANSWERS:

Mrs. Elmer Rambow, housewife, 3307 Palmer st.—I design and make all my own clothes and love to hear my husband say I'm good at it. He not only likes the clothes I make but he actually likes my choice of hats, too. The other day he told me I was looking nicer every day. I guess we all like to hear nice things about ourselves.

Mrs. Buddy Clark, housewife, 3500 Lake Shore dr.—My husband compliments me in an indirect way. I hear what he says about me thru his friends. From what I've gathered he tells them everything nice about me that he can think of, and says, "O, she's the best!" That's the compliment I like best.

Mrs. C. C. O'Donnell, pharmacist, 7747 Ardmore av.—It's a simple little sweet thing to say but I like to hear him tell me, "Honey, you look mighty sharp." When he tells me he's proud of my work that hits the right spot, too. He's a man of few words and I guess he just thinks his compliments and shows in his actions what he thinks.

Mrs. Harold J. Finkl, housewife, 1745 Chicago av., Evanston—For several months I have been concentrating on a reducing diet. It's taken a great deal of will power and persistence but I finally lost 35 pounds. I was elated when he said, "Sweety, you're looking positively charming. Keep up the good work."

Mrs. John Coburn, housewife, Boise, Idaho.—For more than five years I have been trying to master the art of cooking but it's no use—my cooking is lousy! Once in a while tho, in keeping with the law of averages, I manage to make a perfect dinner. It gives me courage to go on to hear my husband praise me.

Mrs. John Crawley, housewife, Brookline, Mass.—It's been so long since my husband has given me a compliment that almost anything he'd say would thrill me. He used to compliment me on my good looks, the clothes I wore, and many other things. But, after 20 years, I guess I'm lucky to have a husband.

SOLDIERS MARCH IN LOOP TODAY TO AID WAR LOAN

Colored smoke pots used in chemical warfare will be set off along State st. today as soldiers, some wearing captured German uniforms, and combat vehicles form a parade starting Roundup week in the Chicago and Cook county 5th war loan drive, which ends July 31. Each day of the week will be marked by rallies, parades, and special events designed to stimulate individual bond sales.

For a half hour, beginning at 11:30 a. m. today, State st. will be closed to civilian vehicular traffic from Van Buren st. to Wacker dr. The parade will start in Burnham park and enter State st. at Van Buren st. A State st. store employes' rally will be held at noon at State and Madison sts. and will be addressed by Philip R. Clarke, chairman of the city-county bond drive, and Willard Cole, president of the State Street council.

Clarke reported yesterday that individual bond sales still are approximately 62 million dollars short of the quota, altho total bond sales in the city and county are far above the goal. Clarke said he is hopeful that by July 31 the individual sales quota will be exceeded for the first time since war loan drives were started.

DANGER OF FIRE ON DES PLAINES RIVER AT AN END

Traffic over the Des Plaines river between Joliet and Marseilles was resumed yesterday when the Coast Guard said that danger of fire from 30,000 gallons of toulene accidentally spilled into Grant creek, a tributary, had passed. The toulene, a highly inflammable and explosive hydrocarbon used in the manufacture of TNT [trinitrotoluene], had escaped from the tank farm at the Kankakee ordnance plant thru a ruptured pipe line. River traffic was ordered halted until the volatile liquid dispersed and evaporated.

Mother, Fearing for Son in Pacific, Takes Poison

Mrs. Ada Carothers, 51, of 1524 W. Marquette rd., was taken to Illinois Central hospital in a serious condition yesterday by Hyde Park police after she swallowed poison. A sister, Mrs. Ethel Thorne, 6551 S. Marshfield av., told police Mrs. Carothers was distraught because she has not heard for six months from her son, James Kaylor, 26, with the marines in the South Pacific.

PEDESTRIAN HELD UP FOR $27.

Harold Rasmussen, 4017 N. Keeler av., was robbed of $27 by two men at Lakewood av. and Melrose st., he told police Saturday.

See your neighbor's Tribune today for additional want ads!

As an emergency measure due to newsprint restrictions, the Tribune temporarily can print in any one copy only half of each day's total volume of want ads. As a result, this copy contains one set of want ads, while the next copy off the press after this one contains an entirely different set of ads. The odds are your neighbor's copy today will be the alternate to yours. By referring to the letters "A" or "B" next to the page number, you can quickly identify the alternate sections. Even tho your copy contains only half the want ads published today by the Tribune, it still contains more want advertising than any other Chicago newspaper.
